The great American Declaration of Independence is 161 years old. Some people who never did anything to help perpetuate its glorious achievements think it is antiquated. Some others know it isn't, but they are so superlatively egged they want to try something else. And then we have, thank God, those good old-fashioned Americans who believe it was good enough for the forefathers and it is still good enough for them. Of the latter class is where I belong, both by genealogical heritage and personal preference.

The battle for independence is still in progress. It may be so, commercially or economically. But if you are at all old-fashioned, you will be impressed that the millennium isn't just around the corner. When the Declaration of Independence was born it declared freedom from foreign dictatorship. Are we again drifting into that danger?

Are those inalienable rights being trampled under the feet of organized oppression? Has too much power drifted into the hands of predatory wealth? If these things be so what about the self-evident truths of equality? And under these restrictions has life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness been shackled, and free and independent decision nullified?

Certain rules of government under the constitution have been ignored. Force has in some cases supplanted the legal formula. A decent respect for the rights of others is not the motivating attitude which brings peace and equity in controversial issues.

Out of these disturbing conditions comes the voice from the wilderness in courageous declaration that "these things shall not pass," that the patriotic traditions of our country shall endure. That the cohesive states bound together by the ties of civil conflict must unite against alien entanglements for the preservation of the United States of America.

Ours is a patient government. It is of the people, for the people. (See SKINNY, Page 2)

I'll Tell You By BOB BURNS

One reason why I feel so sorry for people in the cold city is because in time of trouble or grief, there is no friend to turn to 'em and console 'em. It's so different in a small community where everybody knows everybody else. When someone is stricken with sorrow, the neighbors call in some understanding friend of the family who can break the news to 'em gently and tactfully.

It's like the time when the farmer down home was blowin' out stumps with dynamite one day on his back forty and the fuse was short and the dynamite blew him and the stump up at the same time. Instead of the other man rushin' in and breakin' the news to the widow bluntly, they sent Cousin Pernelly, who sent the door, Pernelly says, "Ain't this the day that insurance fella comes to collect for your husband's insurance?" The farmer's wife says, "Yes," and Pernelly says, "Well, just between you and me, you can snap your fingers at that fella today!"

Garbled Radio Calls Indicate Fliers and Plane on Sandbar

HONOLULU. (AP)—Hopes for the safety of Amelia Earhart and Frederick Noonan, navigator of her lost plane, alternately rose and fell today as the first of several United States navy rescue ships neared the South Pacific area of search.

The government boats Itasca and Swan started speeding to a point 251 miles north of Howland Island early today after receipt of a message which officials believed to be from Miss Earhart. The naval mine sweeper Swan, dispatched with other vessels from Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to aid in the hunt, was 1300 miles from Pearl Harbor, or within 200 miles of Howland Island at 6 a. m. (Santa Ana time) today.

MESSAGES CONFUSING

Garbled radio messages continued to cause confusion, but seemed to increase belief among navy and coast guard listeners that definite contact had been established with the Earhart plane. One series of messages, interpreted variously as meaning the plane was sinking, located on a reef or running out of gasoline with which to operate the radio transmitter, were among dozens picked up by scores of stations.

COLORADO NEAR SCENE

The battleship Colorado, meanwhile, reported that it was nearing tiny Howland Island, the dot on the Pacific for which Miss Earhart and Noonan were heading when they became lost Friday.

Three planes on the battleship, the commanding officer reported, may take off late today for an air search if weather conditions are favorable.

PUTNAM ENCOURAGED

Fragments of faint words, picked up over a considerable period, were pieced together by coast guards as follows: "251 north Howland . . . call KHAQQ (call signal of the Earhart plane) . . . beyond north. . . Don't hold with us much longer. . . above water . . . shut off."

The flier's husband, George Palmer Putnam, returning to his vigil at the Oakland, Cal., airport, said he accepted the words as encouraging. He expressed belief the plane was north of Howland island, running short of gasoline and "above water," meaning it was probably on a coral reef or sandbar.

Paul Mantz, technical adviser to Miss Earhart when she was making her globe-circling flight plans, also expressed the opinion the messages were encouraging.

"MOST HOPEFUL SIGN"

He said there long dashes, as requested by the Pan-American station at Honolulu, had been heard by him in Los Angeles, at 5 a. m. (Santa Ana time.)

"We heard the dashes here," he said, "and this is the most hopeful sign yet."

Earlier this morning cross bearings taken on weak radio signals believed from Miss Earhart and Noonan further confused weary Pan-American operators at Howland and Wake islands.

The radiomen, who have maintained a ceaseless vigil in an effort to contact and locate the missing globe girdling plane, said the bearing fixed the location of the mysterious transmitter as roughly 400 miles northeast of Howland island. This location, they asserted, was miles from any landfall.

A previous bearing taken by Pan-American and coast guardsmen here short of gasoline and fuel, placed the plane in the Pacific.

5 Killed In Fireworks Blast

Five persons were killed or injured fatally and 15 others hurt, some seriously, in a fireworks explosion in a combination drug store and beauty parlor in Napa, Idaho. Fire Chief L. T. Lessinger said children playing at the front of the store, where the fireworks were piled in display, apparently set it off accidentally. E. L. Drake, proprietor of the drug store, estimated his loss at $20,000.

Stork Dodges Skyrockets

Old Man (or is it Old Lady?) Stork thought war had been declared when he flew into Santa Ana with three Fourth of July babies. But he wasn't scared. Dodging skyrockets and Roman candles in midair, he flapped his way to St. Joseph hospital, where he left two baby boys. Then he went to the Sargeant Maternity hospital and delivered a baby girl.

The baby boys went to Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Serrey, 1819 North Ross street, and to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jessce, Route 4. The daughter was for Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Stinson, 320 North Cambridge street, Orange.

CELEBRATE 4TH IN JAIL CELLS

County jailers today opened their barred gate to five Fourth of July celebrators who met up with patrolmen on the highways yesterday.

Haskell G. Cain, 342 North Glassell street, Orange, and William Benson, 708 West Commonwealth street, Fullerton, were jailed on charges of drunken driving. Cain was arrested in Orange and Benson near Fullerton.

Emil Canchola of Costa Mesa was picked up on a reckless driving charge, and Manuel Barrasa, San Juan Capistrano, joined him in jail, facing a hit and run charge.

David F. Cerf, Los Angeles, was brought to jail with a speeding citation. Florence Starkey, 2453 Island avenue, San Diego, sentenced Saturday in Tustin for speeding, began a five day jail term. Troy L. Bennett, pleaded guilty to the same offense in Santa Ana justice court Saturday, and was given a four day sentence.

Should FDR Have 3rd Term?

By JOHN MCLELLAND

How about a third cup of coffee, Mr. Roosevelt?

What will be the President's answer to this vital question when it is put up to him in 1940? That famous cousin, Teddy said "no" to it in 1908. But when he rose up as a Bull Moose four years later he excused himself by saying, "just because I refused a third cup didn't mean I swore off altogether."

But maybe Roosevelt II won't think it wholly impolite to refuse. A great many people believe he won't. And a great many people believe the nation should have the good manners to offer him that third cup.

Not so, apparently, in Santa Ana, where on the face of things most citizens seem to be opposed to a third term for anyone—even Roosevelt.

But it's a far too important question to be dismissed "on the face of things." Realizing this, The Journal is planning a straw poll to determine just what the sentiment here on an issue that is coming nearer and nearer to the fore as the next election year approaches.

Do you agree with Gov. George Earle of Pennsylvania when he asks: "Between the third term precedent and the welfare of the country can any patriotic citizen hesitate as to which course he will take?"

FOURTH MARRED BY ONE DEATH

It was a sane and unusually safe Fourth of July that Orange county experienced yesterday. At noon today the death and injury list read: One dead, five injured. Six small fires were reported.

And that one death may have come from natural causes.

Robert T. Smith, 44, manager of the famed Chinese theater in Hollywood, died on the beach at San Clemente yesterday afternoon. Today an inquest was called to determine whether his death was caused by drowning or heart failure.

Smith went into the shallow surf about 1 o'clock. He was

Parents of Nude Children Jailed

RIVERSIDE. (AP)—A married couple was held in the county jail here today on complaints that their five children, ranging in age from 8 to 16, disported without clothes in a nudist camp a quarter-mile from the Perris business section.

Deputy Sheriff E. J. Burr identified the pair as Mr. and Mrs. Burt Casner. Charges of contributing to the delinquency of minors were filed against them.

Burr said Perris citizens reported the Casner children attracted attention yesterday while nude by shooting fire crackers.

Holiday Fatality Toll 323

Traffic Accounts for 200; Fireworks None

By the Associated Press
The lives lost during the nation's celebration of its 161st independence anniversary stood at 323 today.

Automobile accidents were responsible for 200 of the deaths, drownings 74 and miscellaneous causes accounted for 49.

The Independence Day casualty list, the third largest since 1930, was slightly above the average for the past eight years. From 1930 to 1937, the July Fourth death total was 2117, an average of approximately 264 deaths for each year.

HUNDREDS INJURED

Although the holiday passed without a single fireworks death, an Associated Press survey showed hundreds were treated for injuries from explosives. Thirty-six firecracker victims were treated in Chicago alone.

Six persons were killed in a fireworks explosion and five in a Nampa, Idaho, store July 1.

New York, with 28 deaths, led the holiday mortality roll. California followed with 19, all except two the victims of automobile accidents.

FOUR STATES DEADLIES

All but four of the 48 states—Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming—reported fatalities.

It was the first time in a decade no deaths had been attributed to the use of fireworks. It recalled the "Safe and Sane Fourth" movement started 30 years ago by James Keeley, Chicago editorial writer, as he sat at the bedside of his sick daughter and saw how much she was disturbed by the barrage of explosions that resounded in her room.

SIX DEAD AS BOAT CAPSIZES

VALPARAISO, Fla. (AP)—Six persons were dead today, victims of a Fourth of July boat trip which ended abruptly when the 45-foot motorboat Bab capsized after striking a sand bar in East Pass channel, 10 miles south of here.

Five of the party of 43 were drowned, and a sixth died at a Crestview hospital of injuries received when the craft overturned. The dead were listed as Mrs. Alonzo Smith, 35; Brady Smith, 29; his wife, Muriel, 23; their children, Bertie and Leamon Smith, and Mrs. Zula Taunton of Fort Walton.

Alonzo Smith of Niceville, Fla., owner of the Bab, was quoted as stating the boat struck a sand bar. The passengers, alarmed, rushed to one side of the craft just as a wave struck it, capsizing the boat.

WPA Crossing Guard Breaks After Long Grilling; Tells Details of How He Lured Three Inglewood Children to Hills, Killed and Assaulted Them

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Safe from possible mob violence, but with prosecutors determined to ask his death, a 32-year-old WPA worker paced a cell in the hall of justice today after confessing, Detective Lieutenant Leroy Sanderson said, to the shocking attack-slaying of three little girls.

By his own words, Albert Dyer branded himself, Sanderson said, as the strangler responsible for the deaths of Madeline Everett, 7; her sister, Melba, 8, and Jeannette Stephens, 9, whose violated bodies were found last Monday in a ravine of Baldwin Hills, near suburban Inglewood, where they had disappeared from Centinela park the previous Saturday.

"We shall, of course, ask for the death verdict," said District Attorney Buren Fitts when Dyer's purported confession was obtained last night.

Doubt was cast on Dyer's alleged confession by Merle O. Everett, father of the slain sisters, who asserted "some men will confess anything under pressure, you know, especially if they're a little weak-minded." Everett insisted the girls could not have walked the five miles from the Inglewood park to the ravine where they met death. Mrs. Everett said: "It simply isn't true. Those girls were carried away in an automobile."

Eleven-year-old Olive Everett, third daughter of the couple, identified another man as one who proposed a rabbit hunt to her a year ago, the father said.

TOWNSEND HIT BY SHEPPARD

Orange county Townsends today were keyed up for the boom of their biggest artillery in the battle between Congressman Harry Sheppard and Dr. Francis E. Townsend. The pension plan founder himself will step "to the front" this afternoon at the Townsend chalet in Riverside to reply to Sheppard's defense of himself there yesterday.

Sheppard yesterday made an impassioned plea to the Townsends who sent him to congress from the nineteenth district and who now accuse him of deserting their leader. Fighting with his back to the wall, he defied Dr. Townsend but made scant headway against the forces which have been cutting him down since he broke with Dr. Townsend over the supreme court issue and urged that the founder's name be dropped by the clubs.

Townsends today said Sheppard failed entirely to answer searching questions about his stand, propounded by Attorney (See SHEPPARD, Page 2)

On the morning of the fatal Saturday, he played with the girls in Centinela park, Dyer said. Detective Sanderson asserted the guard laid plans for the lustful crime at this time, persuading the childish trio to "hunt rabbits" in the nearby hills after he finished work at noon.

"They said their mothers didn't want them to, but I kept telling them how much fun it was and finally they agreed that they would meet me," the 138-pound, (See YOUNGEST GIRL, Page 2)

FLYING BOATS TAKE OFF TODAY ON ATLANTIC AIRMAIL ROUTES

FOYNES, Ireland. (AP)—The Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia was poised at the mouth of the River Shannon today for pioneering 1800-mile commercial survey flight across the Atlantic.

With favorable weather, the ship was scheduled to leave western Ireland at 7 p. m. and head out over the Atlantic toward Botwood, Newfoundland, on the proposed transatlantic commercial air route. Almost simultaneously the Pan-American Clipper III was scheduled to lift off Gandens lake, Botwood, Newfoundland, and point her nose eastward across the ocean.

West-to-east handwinds were to be against the Caledonia and it was estimated the flight to Newfoundland would require about 16 hours.

Bad weather Saturday held up the first leg of the Southampton-to-New York flight. The Caledonia made the 351-mile hop yesterday to reach here for final preparations.

After the difficult transatlantic leg is negotiated, the Caledonia plans to fly by easy stages to New York. No passengers will be carried on the initial exploratory flight.

AMERICANS ALL SET TO HOP FROM NEWFOUNDLAND
BOTWOOD, Nfld. (AP)—Ready for an experimental flight across the Atlantic, Capt. Harold E. Gray, master of the Pan-American Clipper III, said today he planned to start the big flying boat on its eastward crossing at 4 p. m., E. S. T.

Gray and his six-man crew—which includes a steward—did not appear worried by the prospects of storms on their 1985-mile hop to Foynes, Irish Free State.

YOUNGEST GIRL KILLED FIRST

Slayer Knotted Rope To Make Death Sure

At the appointed hour, his story continued, "I watched the three girls coming down the road. They were dressed in bright colored clothes and looked fresh and nice."

Then I singled out Jeanette. I told her we'd trapped a rabbit and said we wanted her to help us. Melba wanted to come along, too, but I told her to stay there and I'd catch another bunny for her.

With my hands I choked Jeanette to death and bound her neck with a rope. I wanted to make sure she'd stay dead."

Ignorant of the fact her sister and her chum had been slain only a few feet from her, Melba Everett played and awaited the man's return.

"She went with me without question," the confession recited. "When I began choking her she tried to scream. She fought. She almost got away from me. But I choked her like I did the others. She struggled on the ground. She clawed at the dirt and kicked, but pretty soon she grew quiet. I knotted a rope around her neck, too."

Madeline, the baby of the trio and the first to die, was then attacked. The lifeless bodies of the others were violated in turn.

His blue jeans stained with blood, Dyer was quoted as saying he hurried out of the hills and changed his clothes at home, eating a "good supper" about 5:30 p. m.

"Then I went downtown to see if anything was doing about the girls being missing from home."

All day Sunday, while search for the trio was intensified, Dyer waited around, offering suggestions to authorities. On Monday, after four Boy Scouts found the bodies in the ravine, Dyer was among the first to reach the scene of the crime.

"I told the fellows around there they oughtn't to smoke out of respect for the dead and because they might start a grass fire," Dyer's alleged confession said.

Our forefathers came to this country to be free and independent. They had to fight for those principles, and they didn't have any army tanks to enforce their demands. It's a long distance from Valley Forge and Bunker Hill to the highly mechanized complex country we have today.

Those who have the responsibility of formative instruction should not depart from the traditions which made this country glorious. If they are unable to enjoy our form of government, transportation is available by common carriers to those nations which more nearly meet their theories of government. Firemen worked over his body for an hour and a half before Dr. Paul H. Esslinger, who was called to the scene, pronounced him dead.

The fact that he was in the water such a short time led the doctor to believe he may have died from a heart attack.

The body was taken to Divil's mortuary, where an inquest will be held late today.

James Noe, 414 Mayberry street, was injured in the most serious accident in Santa Ana yesterday.

Noe was driving with Leolla Schroeder, 2227 North Lincoln street, on South Main street last night, when he lost control of his car and crashed into a telephone pole at the intersection of Newport road.

He was rushed to the Santa Ana Valley hospital by the Orange county ambulance service, where his condition was reported as critical. X-rays were being taken this morning to determine the extent of his injuries.

Miss Schroeder was given first aid treatment for minor injuries.

BOY HITS TRUCK Six-year-old Edwin Lee Gano of Fullerton sustained cuts and bruises Saturday evening when he ran into the side of a truck at East Chapman avenue and Orange street, in Orange. Eugene Reems, 1440 West Chapman, driver of the truck, said he saw the boy standing on the curb, and then felt a jar as something hit the spare tire. Young Gano was given first aid treatment by an Orange physician.

14 Rail Unions Plan Strike Vote

CHICAGO (AP)—The 14 "non-operating" railroad brotherhoods called upon their 800,000 members today for a strike vote, the same action recently taken by the "Big Five" rail labor unions.

Both groups sought wage increases. The "non-operating" brotherhoods demanded a 20 cent an hour pay hike, the "operating" unions—with a membership of 300,000—a flat 20 per cent boost.

CRASH INJURES TWO Lupe and Ralph Barrera, 1042 Patt street, Anaheim, are in the county hospital today recovering from injuries after an accident at the intersection of highways 175A and 2A yesterday.

The Barreras were riding in a car driven by Fernando Barrera, which collided with a sedan driven by Blanch A. Moody, 3012 East Seventh street, Long Beach.

Two minor accidents in which none were injured occurred in Santa Ana yesterday.

Mrs. Helen Gertrude Coopman, 208 Jackson street, Midway City, was driving on North Main when her auto collided with a car driven by Bernard Hale Way, 1510 Rio Rondo, Rosemead. Both vehicles were slightly damaged.

SHEPPARD TO DEFY TOWNSEND

George Varnum of La Habra. Since the break, Townsends have been wondering if Sheppard plans to lead the General Welfare club organization being formed to replace the Townsend movement.

Varnum summarized the Townsends' curiosity in asking, "Or is he (Sheppard) advocating or preparing to advocate something that merely looks like the Townsend plan of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, or does he even propose to kidnap the Townsend plan and raise it on a bottle, with the steering committee supplying the bottle—and artificial food?"

The steering committee is the congressional group charged with piloting the Townsend bill through congress, and which asked that Townsend's name be dropped by the clubs.

Sheppard did not answer this question, Townsends reported. But he did tell the 2000 persons present he would not let even Dr. Townsend stand in the way of his congressional drive for a pension plan based upon a transaction tax.

Sheppard has contended that Dr. Townsend's opposition to the supreme court changes planned by President Roosevelt has impaired chances of the old age pension bill in the Democratic congress.

"Dr. Townsend is a fine old man," said Sheppard, "and has done a marvelous job in making the nation old-age-conscious. But he's human and he's made a mistake. It's a mistake which can be corrected, but not by cutting each other's throats."

Sheppard's public speakers for what he said was a biased interpretation of his letter to Townsend clubs on June 9, in which he urged the name change.

"I have no apology to make and if you don't like it, I don't care," he said when he had reached an emotional stage in his address. "I would like to take you out to the old woodshed and spank you where you'd most enjoy it."

Sheppard recalled that when he was elected, he warned the Townsend people that he was a Democrat, indicating that he would support the administration, even though it differed with the Townsend leadership.

Lindy Paddles to French Island in Rubber Boat

LONDON (AP)—A dispatch to the London Daily Mail today told how Col. Charles A. Lindbergh paddled a collapsible rubber boat a quarter of a mile at night to St. Gilda's island off the coast of France.

The American aviator flew from England Friday, heading for the island frequently used as a retreat for Dr. Alexis Carrel, the Rockefeller Institute scientist in developing a mechanical heart.

The story of his arrival was told by Mlle. Yvette Jessequel, whose father acts as messenger between the Brittany coast and the mile-square island.

"Late Friday night his big black and orange monoplane swooped down over the island as if to give the signal he was coming," the girl said. "He then flew on to the airport at Dinant."

The flier motored 80 miles to Port Blanc where the usual motor boat from St. Gilda's failed to meet him.

The colonel, however, had brought a collapsible rubber boat from his plane.

"He had to blow up the boat with a hand pump," said the narrator, "and then launch it and oadled to the island just before midnight."

There was a report that Lindbergh would conduct scientific research on the island.

sender in the vicinity of Gardner and McKean islands in the Phoenix group, approximately 150 miles south of Howland.

Officials said the later bearing may be inaccurate because of the weakness of the signals. The British steamer Moorby, 240 miles north of Howland, reported it heard a strong continuous carrier wave frequency near midnight last night, and for the last time at 1 a. m. (3:30 a. m. Santa Ana time).

Coast guardsmen declared they last heard the carrier at Honolulu at 1:30 (4 a. m. Santa Ana time).

The coast guard cutter Itasca, whose radio was silent until messages presumably from the Earhart plane were intercepted by Baker Island colonists, 40 miles southward and by the portable station on Howland, began transmitting signals with the hope they would be received by the plane.

OTHERS TO RESCUE Coast guard officials said they were "encouraged" by the repeated signals, but at a loss to explain how the Earhart plane could still have power to transmit.

As radio men swept the air lanes with every facility of modern communication at their command in an effort to locate the source of the signals American warships sped toward Howland from two directions.

The giant aircraft carrier Lexington and four destroyers pushed westward from San Diego under forced draft.

Townsend News, Views

By
WALTER R. ROBE

Much has been written and spoken of late concerning the fact that "America is at the crossroads." It is another way of saying that the nation has moved into an era of conflicting opinions and ideas on the part of its citizenry. That the cross currents of public opinion concerning social and legislative problems are waxing strong and because there is a lack of unanimity of opinion of sufficient volume, the ship of state more or less flounders and waits before it definitely embarks on a determined course over the sea of destiny. Just now the nation is in state of mind similar to that of "a double-minded man who is unstable in all his ways," according to a scripture statement. It was Thomas Carlyle, famous Scotsman who once said, "A Man without a purpose in life, is a nothing—a no man." So it is with government—there must of necessity be definiteness in purpose and in objective attainments before real and true grandeur of government can be existent. The sad fact of the present status of the nation is that there is not sufficient solidity of purpose or opinion capable of being exerted without hindrance on the part of any particular opinion group. The result is that permanent progress toward permanent solution of national problems does not yet seem probable or evident.

Today we celebrate the 161st anniversary of the nation's birthday. On July 4, 1776, there was definiteness of purpose on the part of the colonial groups who had successfully defied the edicts of the political powers who were determined upon imposing burdens unbearable upon the people who had by their own energies and initiative wrought for themselves a new environment in a new country. This new people had come to this new country to escape certain intolerable conditions prevailing in their home countries. Here they built for themselves a haven of presumed security and a place where the liberties which they cherished for themselves and their posterity they hoped could always be enjoyed. Time brought vividly to their understanding that their dreams of a future, free from molestation on the part of their mother country, were destined to be rudely disturbed. Then came the Revolutionary war and later the Declaration of Independence which today we again commemorate.

The history of those pre-revolutionary days and the struggle of the revolution itself are blood red with the sacrifice of an heroic people. Men left their families to face the shot and shell of the battlefields rather than yield themselves to the slave-like demands being made by the powers claiming the right to govern. Resistance on the part of these early pioneers of American progress brought to many of them death and to others life-long suffering, resultant of wounds and sorrow to many of the wives and children of that day such as only the relatives of soldiers ever know. But the heroic attitude on the part of those of freedom. In that struggle it was determined that the right on the part of the government to tax for the purpose of supporting the expenses of government also entailed the granting of representation in the kind of government which from time to time was to be evolved.

Representation in the affairs of government cannot be enjoyed by a people who are not free to express their ideas through the written word or through opinions expressed through public speech or privately conveyed communications. In America we have known such privileges since July 4, 1776, in a measure greater than has been enjoyed by any other people comparable to us in numbers or in political power.

As we celebrate the Fourth of July today we should once again renew our pledge of allegiance to those principles of freedom which have made our heritages as a people great. We should make definite purposes to guard with every power at our command the vital principles of American liberty and the form of government which makes its continuance possible and probable.

Shortly after our revolutionary days there began to be assembled the opinions which finally eventuated in the formulation of the constitution of the United States with its three branch form of government. In the light of later opinion there has been added to that historical document the various amendments which now make up the constitution. Until lately there was never any thought that there ought to be any encroachments on the part of the national executive in the fields of

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. T. E. Johnson of Santa Ana; a niece, Mrs. Annabel Shallenberger of Glendale; two nephews, Otto Nohrberg of Riverside and J. C. Nohrberg of Madera, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Gertrude Freeman of Mexico, Mo.
Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock from the Smith and Tutill chapel, the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan officiating. Interment will be in Fairhaven cemetery.

Fight Holly Sugar Extra Dividend

Orange county stockholders in the Holly Sugar corporation were interested today in a stockholders' move to restrain the corporation from paying an extra 25-cent dividend to holders of 500,000 shares of Holly common stock on Aug. 2.

The matter was taken under advisement by Supreme Court Justice Lois A. Valente of New York after hearing brief arguments. Plaintiffs representing 219 shares of stock initiated the action.

They argued that the corporation cannot pay more than a dividend of two dollars a share on common stock in any calendar year, and that such a dividend already has been paid this year.
The Holly Sugar company has a refinery southeast of Santa Ana on Dyer road.

'Firecracker' Calls Keep Police Busy

The headaches that "firecracker calls" give police warrant, at their latest yesterday, as officers were called out 16 times to quell noisy celebrators.

Fifteen times it was the same old story—warning children to ease up. But once a grown-up was the cause of a disturbance.
He was J. W. Jennings who was shooting them loud and high at Chestnut and Main streets. He was harassed, he promised to shoot no more crackers that day.

PASTOR'S WIFE DIES AT ORANGE

Mrs. Bertha Dorthea Bode, wife of the Rev. A. C. Bode, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church in Orange, died last night following a long illness.

Mrs. Bode was born in 1875 in Courtland, Minn., and lived there until 1923, when the Rev. Mr. Bode came to Orange to his present pastorate.

She is survived by a son, Walter Bode of Yakima, Wash.; three daughters, Miss Alma Bode, teacher in Orange intermediate school, Miss Eugenia Bode of Orange, and Mrs. Cornelia Sylvester of Colton; four grandchildren; two brothers, Hugo and Arthur Lang of Iowa; and a sister, Mrs. Alma Bode of Fairmont, Minn.

Funeral services, in charge of the Gillingly Funeral home, will be conducted from St. John's church at 2 p. m. Thursday, with burial in St. John's cemetery.

Forum to Discuss Water Program
The Orange county flood control program is to be considered at the Summer Forum tomorrow night.

N. M. Thompson, flood control engineer of Orange county, is scheduled to be present to answer all questions regarding the work of the flood control project for which bonds are to be voted this month.

All phases of the plan and the problems connected with it are to be thrashed out from the citizen-voter's stand point. Who is to handle the money if voted? How is it to be expended? What percentage will go to labor and to materials, to purchase rights-of-ways?

Is this to be all the money required or is only a beginning? How has the original plan, twice rejected, been modified?

Everyone interested in casting an intelligent vote at the coming bond election is urged to be present, to ask questions and, if he wishes, to raise objections. Forum privileges will be accorded all who attend, forum officials said.

The forum convenes at 7:45 p. m., with a quarter-hour of music, played by Bill Beaman.

Arrest Boys Who Shot at Trees
Two youths who reportedly had been going to cut orange trees on the Fred Gaskill ranch near Garden Grove almost found themselves in jail over the week-end, except that Gaskill declined to sign a complaint.

Sheriff's Deputies Hoffman and Dunga, summoned to the scene by a telephone call, Gaskill's son-in-law, warned two youths, they said, who promised they would discontinue their shooting.

Orange Boy Lost In Holiday Crowd
Only one boy became so completely lost in holiday crowds in Santa Ana yesterday that he had to be taken home by police.

He was Jerry Lingle, five years old, who was found at Fourth and Main streets and taken home to his father on Olive street in Orange.

HUNT PEEPING TOM
Sheriff's deputies conducted a futile search Saturday night for a Peeping Tom reported near the David Vrooman home on Huntington Beach boulevard.

No Ladies Will Be ARRESTED For Buying Chintz

Here's a funny little item about sales-tax troubles 160 years ago in London.

To protect the English weavers of linen and wool, cotton chintz was stiffly taxed, and the Lord Mayor was "shocked and grieved" to see three gentlewomen walking in St. James Park on Sunday dressed in chintz gowns. On Monday morning, the three ladies were haled into court but all promptly paid their fines . . . because chintz was so pretty and so cool!

It still is. Crisp little dot and flower chintz for warm weather frocks. Red-rambler-rose chintz for summer bedrooms. Chintz slip-covers for dining-room chairs. Chintz blinds when you take the winter draperies down.

Right now is the time to do your chintz-choosing. Or gay cretonnes and bold blocked linens . . . clothes at special after-June savings . . . porch and lawn furniture . . . garden tools . . . all the things you'll need and enjoy this summer.

Study the advertisements to see who's selling them and what the price tags are. Pre-shopping in the pages of this paper will save you hours of aimless wandering and indecision—will make every dollar do extra duty. In June, and all year round, read the advertisements first.

Joe Mene, the Anaheim Frenchman, is centerfielding with Frank Merriwell technique for Moline of the Three-Eye league.

His club lost to Clinton, 3 to 2, the other afternoon, but Joe belted a home run to left-center and a smash single to right field for two of the four hits yielded by the opposition.

Mene, who had a trial with the Los Angeles Angels this spring, has connected safely in 37 straight games!

That softball tour which Miss Ruth Lee of Santa Ana completed for the RKO studios took the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Lee, 403 McFadden street, into nine states—Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Kansas and Colorado.

Joe Koepler, the Saints' head basketball and baseball coach, will "take it easy at the beach" this month before leaving for Washington in August for a brief visit with relatives.

What is believed to be an all-time County league attendance record was set at Brea's game with Irvine. Approximately 1000 fans saw the softball thriller, won by Irvine 1-0.

San Bernardino is riled over Anaheim's protest of the Ponies' 4-3 victory on an umpire's decision at Anaheim.

Here's a portion of Owner Howard Bard's protest which San Bernardino filed with Pres. Walter Wentz of Garden Grove:

"We felt when we paid our money into the National league that we would be a member of that circuit, but apparently from all information emanating from your territory we are still considered the American league, and inasmuch as we are by ourselves, we accept the challenge."

"The sportsmanship of the Anaheim club is one of the variety—a bad smell. If we are allowed the courtesy of remaining in the league the final half, we will insist on having Vice President Sid Olin choosing one of the umpires. We will endeavor to beat other clubs, but it cannot be done and take on two umpires besides. We hope that we have made ourselves clear, and we wish to assure you that, since we understand things better, we will know how to conduct ourselves in the future."

Here is a goal for Blonde Bombshell Lois Terry of Santa Ana to shoot at: A Riverside girl fanned 26 straight rivals and made the 27th and final putout by catching a weak pop-up!

Maurice Young, hard-hitting little third-baseman of Montgomery Ward's first-half City league champions, is considered a prize catch for Santa Ana Stars.

Stars Sign Jacobsmeyer to Hur Tomorrow

PONIES PLAY AT STADIUM

Wiemer and Schwarm
Land Regular Posts
And 3 Vets Return

By PAUL WRIGHT
Look out for Santa Ana! That was the blanket warning that rang in the ears of National Nightball league players today with the signing by Manager "Doc" Smith of the Stars—of Stan Jacobsmeyer, pitching mainstay of the defunct Riverside Rubidoux.

Jacobsmeyer informed Smith by telephone he will be in the lineup at the Municipal bowl tomorrow night when the Stars open their new schedule against San Bernardino's second-place Ponies.

MAY FURNISH SPARK
Now resting comfortably in third place—ahead of Anaheim—Santa Ana may find in Jacobsmeyer the added spark that will carry the Stars to the heights. The Smithies have the plate punch and the fielding; all they have needed is better-than-ordinary pitching. Jacobsmeyer, a clever right-hander, can furnish that. He defeated Santa Ana, 8 to 4, at Riverside, and previously upset San Bernardino.

Whether Jacobsmeyer will remain here hinges on his ability to find a job. But it is certain he will perform here against San Bernardino.

Bob Mott, southpaw first baseman and hurler who is nursing a dislocated finger, will be able to aid Jacobsmeyer on the mound in a few days. Tomorrow night he probably will be seen at first base with Nan Coots or Bono Koral behind the loaf.

WIEMER SHOWS CLASS
The Stars will be at their greatest strength. Two impressive city leaguers—Bob Schwarm and Fred Wiemer—will patrol center and right fields, respectively.

Wiemer has hit safely seven times in his only 12 trips to the plate!

Tom Denney will return in left field, and two regulars who missed last Friday's exhibition with Orange, Tommy Young and Charley Comstock, will be back at third and shortstop. Manager Smith will operate at second.

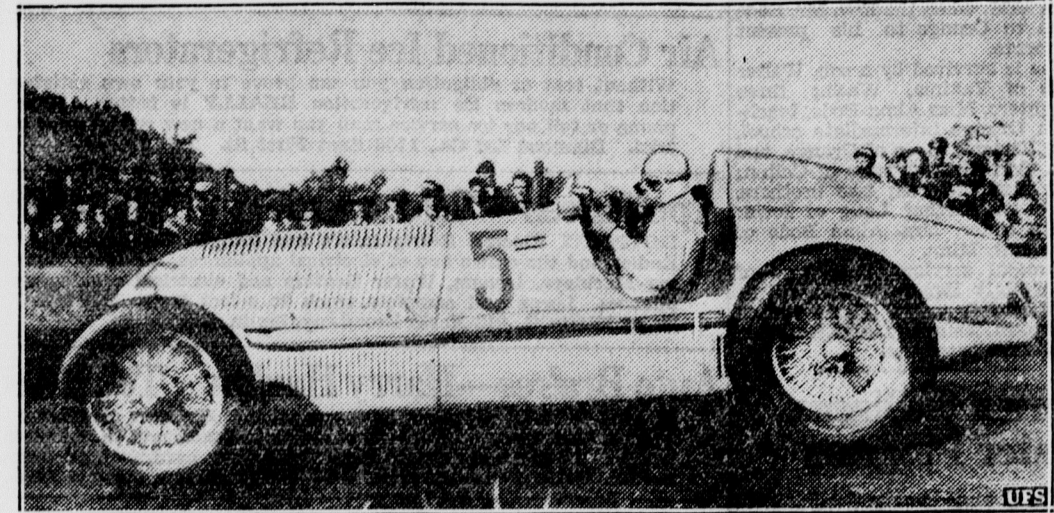

San Bernardino will pitch either Venn Botts, right-handed manager, or Bobby Fowler, baffling southpaw.

SANTA ANA NET STAR BEATEN

Mrs. Marjorie Lauderbach Blair of Santa Ana, after making spectacular progress, lost the women's singles title to Elizabeth Delke, twice National Public Parks queen, in the Pacific Coast Public Parks tournament in Long Beach yesterday. Scores were 5-7, 5-3, 6-2.

Ronald Lubin, Los Angeles, defeated a fellow Angeleno, Willis Anderson, 8-6, 6-4 after besting Al Fierman of San Pedro in semifinals, 6-3, 6-2.

L. A. GOLF CHAMPION
LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Jack Dunphy, 47-year-old manufacturer who won the New York state amateur golf title a quarter century ago, emerged yesterday as champion of Los Angeles public links.

SEEKS VANDERBILT CUP—Ready to participate in the George Vanderbilt cup race at Roosevelt Raceway, Long Island, today is Rudolf Caracciola, who has won every important Grand Prix race in Europe. Despite his Italian name, he is a German subject, born in the Rhineland. His racing car is a Mercedes, one of the world's fastest, with a speed capacity of 130 to 200 miles per hour. The Vanderbilt race was postponed from Saturday because of rain.

Acorns Capture First Series; Sacs Leading

By the Associated Press
Oakland's much improved Acorns can lose both ends of a double-header with the Seattle Indians today and still achieve their cherished ambition—win their first series of the current Pacific Coast league baseball season.

For 13 weeks the Oaks failed, but by splitting a twin bill with the Indians yesterday, they ran their total for the series to five games won and two lost. Seattle took the opener, 5 to 7, but Ernie Bonham entered baseball's hall of fame in the nightcap when he pitched seven innings of no-hit, no-run baseball to give the Acorns a 2 to 0 decision.

San Francisco split a pair with the Missions. They dropped the opener, 12 to 4 although they out-hit the Reds, 16 to 13, but came back to take another slugfest, 10 to 9. The Seals made 10 hits, the Missions 12. In the two games 10 pitchers paraded to the pitchers box for the two teams.

Sacramento, playing in and out all week, still maintained a half game lead today after winning the first from Portland yesterday, 9 to 4. It dropped the second game, 4 to 2. San Diego's record of not having lost a series on its home diamond this season remained intact. The Padres took both ends of a twin bill from Los Angeles, 2 to 1 and 12 to 1, to give them five out of seven games.

Home runs were plentiful in yesterday's games. Ernie Koy and Bill Baker clouted homers in their second game with Seattle to give the Oaks a 2 to 0 decision and Pitcher Bonham his no-hit, no-run game. In the first game Erman Michael and Fred Muller of the Tribe decided the tilt for the Tribe when each slapped one out of the ball park. Johnny Frederick of the Beavers slashed a four-bagger.

Gil Guthrie Loses Midget Car Race

FRESNO. (AP)—Al Stein of Berkeley captured the 30-lap main event in the weekly midget auto races here last night in 8 min., 19.21 secs. Bryce Morris, Fresno, was second, Gil Guthrie, Los Angeles, third, and Fred Friday, Los Angeles, fourth.

H. B. FISHERMAN SETS RECORD

Miller Averages 145
Ft. in Distance Fly

R. B. Miller of Huntington Beach, who belted his last Friday record in the salmon fly last Friday, averaged 145 ft. 9 1/2 in. in the distance fly yesterday, bettering national and world marks.

Miller's remarkable feat gave Huntington Beach a fourth in the all-around championships of the Far-Western fly and bait casting competitions, won by Herman Hittenberger of San Francisco at Long Beach yesterday.

San Francisco, defending team titlist, lost its trophy to Long Beach. Oakland was third, ahead of Huntington Beach.

Carroll Thorn, Jr., Long Beach, National junior champion, retained his title in the 36-ounce accuracy bait with a score of 99.

GREY COUNT IS RACE CHOICE

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP)—Heading a field of eight, E. E. Fogelson's Grey Count was favored to win the $2000 added Independence day handicap at Bing Crosby's million dollar racing plant today.

Grey Count had an easy time winning the Del Mar inaugural feature when the track opened Saturday. Other horses entered in the race are Rich Daddy, Flashinpan, Boss Martin, Iron Hills, Claudian, Bon Homage and Glory Day.

Sky o' Blue was second and Quick Flight third. Jockwell paid $11.40, $4.40 and $3. More than 12,000 persons, the season's largest crowd, attended the program, track officials said.

VAUGHAN TO PLAY THIRD

Selection of Arky at
New Post Protested
By 'All-Star' Fans

BY DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK. (AP)—Baseball's mid-summer extravaganza, the game between all-star teams of the National and American leagues, will be played Wednesday at Washington, with interest over the team selections and outcome at a higher pitch than at any time since the game was inaugurated at Chicago in 1933.

President Roosevelt will throw out the first ball at 10:30 (P. S. T.). While the size of the Senator's park at Washington precludes any forecast of a record crowd, the game is heralded by Secretary Ed Eymon of the Washington club as a sellout. This means that 30,392 fans will pay $26,977 to see the contest. The gate, less the operating expenses, will be turned over to a fund for indigent players.

Last year at Boston the National league club halted the American league, 4-3, breaking a string of triumphs that had extended since the game was first played at Chicago. The two great hurlers, Dizzy Dean and Carl Hubbell, who turned back the junior circuit hitters last year, will be on hand again, plus the talented Van Lingle Mungo, Brooklyn's exponent of the "high hard one," and the highest hitting infield and outfield the other league has yet been able to muster.

Managers Bill Terry of the Giants and Joe McCarthy of the Yankees have chosen the teams for this year's game, a departure from the original idea which assigned the duty to the fans. Fans have protested some of the selections violently, particularly in the National league, where Terry's choice of Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh shortstop, to play third base over the circuit's regular third sacker, has given the solid citizens of Brooklyn and Philadelphia, home cities of Joe Strip and Pinkie Whitney, plenty to shout about.

The American league will use such sluggers as Lou Gehrig, Hank Greenberg, Joe DiMaggio, Charlie Gehringer, Joe Cronin and Bill Dickey, outstanding batsmen in a league never shy of men handy with the wood.

Usually deficient at the plate against the National leaguers have plenty of power for this game. Ducky Medwick, Cardinal outfielder, is top man of a batting order that packs power and punch from top to bottom. It included Paul Waner, Mel Ott, Vaughan, Dick Bartell, Gabby Hartnett, Johnny Mize and Jimmy Collins.

Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, who has been in every all-star game save last year's, will probably start for the junior circuit. He had pitched a one-hitter and a five-hit shutout in his last two games. After he pitches his three innings, the maximum effort allowed each hurler in this game, McCarthy can call on the aging but wily Lefty Grove, Detroit's Tommy Bridges, Wes Ferrell of the Senators, Mel Harter of the Indians and Monty Stratton of the White Sox.

BOB FELLER REJOINS CLEVELAND

Sport SLANTS

Ralph Guldahl, flushed with his record-breaking triumphs in the national open at Oakland Hills Country club, has his sights trained on the British open championship. The "double" would make up for those lean years which followed his failure in 1933. He missed a 4-foot putt for a chance to tie Johnny Goodman for the national open title in Chicago.

Winning both the United States and British opens the same year is some stunt. Bobby Jones did it in 1926 and repeated in 1930. The year of his grand slam, Gene Sarazen won the British title in 1922 before he burned up the Fresh Meadow course with a record-breaking 66 on the final 18 to snatch the U. S. open from Phil Perkins and Bobby Cruikshank.

America has a worthy champion to send into the British test this year. Guldahl, in staging his remarkable comeback, last year won the Radix cup awarded to the professional hanging up the lowest average for tournament play during the year. His garrison finish in winning the Augusta and Miami Biltmore opens enabled him to take the trophy. Any golfer able to outscore his fellow pros over a long stretch certainly deserves to wear a champion's crown.

Following his failure at Chicago four years ago, Guldahl ran into more than his share of hard luck. At one stage things were so bad that he hooked his clubs and took up a job as carpenter's helper to keep his family from want.

When he returned to the game, winning was a serious matter. He was hungry. He had to win in order to provide for himself and his family. A couple of big prizes helped matters but there still was a lot of ground to be made up.

GOMEZ SHUTS OUT SOLONS

N.Y. Keeps 3 1/2-Game Lead With Win, 7-0; Cubs, Giants Annex

It was a glorious Fourth for a lot of baseball folks, particularly those sporting uniforms of the New Yankees and Chicago Cubs, but you'd have to look a long way to find a happier lad than Master Robert Feller. Master Robert was like a kid with his first firecracker, all because that mysterious salary wing of his apparently has stopped acting up, and is now ready to take a regular pitching turn for the Cleveland Indians.

If tradition holds good, the Yankees and Cubs, leading in the pennant parade on the July 4 deadline, will be fighting it out in next fall's world series. Now all they have to do is stay in the driver's seat until Oct. 3.

To Feller, this July 4 goes down in the book as a red letter day. Most publicized youngster of the year, he has been the season's biggest bust to date.

WEST REPLACES WALKER.
ST. LOUIS, (AP)—The name of Sammy West, veteran outfielder for the St. Louis Browns, today supplanted that of Gerald Walker of Detroit's Tigers on the roster of American league stars who will meet the National league team Wednesday in Washington. West said he had received notification from William Harridge, president of the American league, of his selection in place of the injured Tiger star.

Although he lost a 3-2 decision to the Tigers yesterday, his arm stood the test like Glenn Cunningham's test record. In four innings he fanned four batsmen and generally had things in hand. In the fourth he made a wild peg to third that set the stage for the only hit off him, Pete Fox's single, which produced two of the three Tiger rallies.

Despite the victory, the Tigers dropped to fourth place in the American league, since the surging Boston Red Sox socked the Philadelphia Athletics twice, 7-6 and 4-2, to jump into third.

The Yankees retained a 3 1/2-game lead in the American league as Lefty Gomez pitched a five-hit shutout to whip the Senators, 7-0.

The Cubs split a couple of slug-ging bouts with the Pirates, taking the first, 8-5, on three homers, and 7-6.

After being held to two hits by Van Mungo for six innings, the Giants teed off for four runs in the eighth, and topped the Brooklyn Dodgers, 6-5, to remain just off the race.

The White Sox whipped the Browns twice, 4-2 and 9-5. Dizzy Dean pitched a seven-inning and Lon Warneke a four-inning game as the Cards clubbed Cincinnati, 1-0 and 5-2. The Bees boosted themselves into fifth place in the National league with a twin Yankee win over the Phillies, 14-9 and 4-2, the latter going 10 innings until Eddie Mayo's homer broke it up.

HORTON SMITH POSTS 69 IN BRITISH OPEN QUALIFYING

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland. (AP)—Blond Horton Smith, a demon with a putter when he's right, and tall, thin Aubrey Boomer, 40-year-old Englishman who has been a professional in France for a number of years, posted joint 69's over the championship Carnoustie round of the British Open golf championship.

Their scores were two under par and lower than Hector Thomson's course record by one stroke.

Behind Boomer and Smith came three players with course record scores over the shorter neighboring Burnside links, being used only for the qualifying rounds. One was Gene Sarazen, the veteran American who won the British title in 1932 and today led two strokes on the back nine after going out in 32, three under par.

The others were young Ernest E. Whitcombe of Great Britain and Pat Mahon of Ireland.

Among the Americans well up in the running with part of the 50 cut to be heard from were Walter Hagen, with a fine 71 at Burnside; Ed Dudley and Tony Manero, with 72's on the same course; Henry Picard, with a 73 at Carnoustie, and U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl with a 74 at Carnoustie.

EVERYDAY MOVIES

By Denys Wortman

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Horse racing, brought back to California four years ago after an absence of nearly a quarter of a century, has been a profitable sport as far as the state treasury is concerned.

Starting off with the 1933-34 season, when only $259,657.26 was taken in via taxes and the state's "cut" in the legalized pari-mutuel betting, revenues have jumped considerably.

The 1936-37 season which ended officially June 30 brought $1,933,259.84 in revenues, bringing the total for the four years up to $4,785,394.

The California horse racing board pointed out that renewed interest in breeding has materially benefited that industry in the state, added in its fiscal report issued today that operating expenses of the board itself were "less than $20,000" for the 1936-37 season.

"Of the $1,933,259.84 revenue received by the state for the season just closed, less than $20,000 was expended by the racing board in its administration costs, leaving approximately $1,913,000 for distribution to the state's fairs and agricultural colleges.

"Our fairs are largely dependent upon these funds for their support, and their distribution has resulted in the revival of a number of fairs which had been closed on account of lack of financial support."

GUESTS ARE A PAIN

Guest stars on radio are getting to be as bad as double bills on the screen. . . . They're both odiferous. . . . There are, we think, very few personalities, available as guests, who can carry a show. . . . Benny, Cantor, Berle, Leslie Howard, and a few vocalists we know can do it. . . . The rest might just as well be nonexistent. . . . Over at the Little Grand we're getting mighty tired sitting through two hours of blood-curdling western dramma to view a picture we want to see. . . . And this idea of having to suffer through the antics of a guest, while the radio show's headline waits is getting worse all the time. . . .

HERE'S THE REASON

What occasioned this outburst was the Bergen-McCarthy show yesterday afternoon. . . . Edgar and Charley, with a good show for a half hour each week. . . . But no, their sponsor rings in Don Ameche, Robert Armstrong, W. G. Fields, Zazu Pitts, somebody's chorus, and half a dozen other "names." What would have otherwise been an excellent show was carried under by the weight of the "names" appearing on it. . . .

GUESTS ARE A PAIN

Guest stars on radio are getting to be as bad as double bills on the screen. . . . They're both odiferous. . . . There are, we think, very few personalities, available as guests, who can carry a show. . . . Benny, Cantor, Berle, Leslie Howard, and a few vocalists we know can do it. . . . The rest might just as well be nonexistent. . . . Over at the Little Grand we're getting mighty tired sitting through two hours of blood-curdling western dramma to view a picture we want to see. . . . And this idea of having to suffer through the antics of a guest, while the radio show's headline waits is getting worse all the time. . . .

HERE'S THE REASON

What occasioned this outburst was the Bergen-McCarthy show yesterday afternoon. . . . Edgar and Charley, with a good show for a half hour each week. . . . But no, their sponsor rings in Don Ameche, Robert Armstrong, W. G. Fields, Zazu Pitts, somebody's chorus, and half a dozen other "names." What would have otherwise been an excellent show was carried under by the weight of the "names" appearing on it. . . .

HORSE RACING NETS $4,785,394

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Horse racing, brought back to California four years ago after an absence of nearly a quarter of a century, has been a profitable sport as far as the state treasury is concerned.

Starting off with the 1933-34 season, when only $259,657.26 was taken in via taxes and the state's "cut" in the legalized pari-mutuel betting, revenues have jumped considerably.

The 1936-37 season which ended officially June 30 brought $1,933,259.84 in revenues, bringing the total for the four years up to $4,785,394.

The California horse racing board pointed out that renewed interest in breeding has materially benefited that industry in the state, added in its fiscal report issued today that operating expenses of the board itself were "less than $20,000" for the 1936-37 season.

"Of the $1,933,259.84 revenue received by the state for the season just closed, less than $20,000 was expended by the racing board in its administration costs, leaving approximately $1,913,000 for distribution to the state's fairs and agricultural colleges.

"Our fairs are largely dependent upon these funds for their support, and their distribution has resulted in the revival of a number of fairs which had been closed on account of lack of financial support."

BRICK DUST

GAINES

By 'SKINNY' SKIRVIN
"Brick" Gaines, County editor. On vacation. Two weeks. What that little red-headed shrimp could do in two weeks would make the "Arabian Nights" look like daylight. If he gets into trouble, let the penalty rest on his own head. He never came near to ask "Grandpa" how vacations were spent, or where to spend them.

So I suppose you'll find him floating around Balboa in a sloop or a yacht or a bathing suit. Anyhow, I'll bet he's floating. "Brick" sort of drifts toward the beach. Maybe he wants to be near Tommy Bouchee if he gets into trouble—and he probably will—or seek the fatherly advice of Sam Meyer should he forget to pick the boat overtime. Friends in need are friends indeed, and "Brick" may need 'em.

What he should have done before leaving the office to spend two weeks some place is to persuade the county newspaper boys to fill the "Brick Dust" column. That's the chiseling method used by Ed Ainsworth, and it works beautifully. "Brick" could have got Verne Beck to write a column about "Little Chilly" Meyer, or about the "Tournament of Lights" and Frank Fowler runs the Costa Mesa Herald in "Brick's" own town. What's the feeling there—if any?

So, no provision having been made for vacation pinch-hitting, Frank Orr, is rowing the boat for "Brick" with just one oar. I'm throwing in a splinter just for today in order to make the page look natural but read different.

There isn't any reason I know of why Jim Fraquhar couldn't have opened another barrel of "Oil" and helped out our little friend who took a two weeks' vacation, just because he had it comin'. I don't believe it will do him any good. I don't know what will. If I knew, I'd sure help him. I like him and don't know why.

And while I'm sending out an SOS for "Brick," what's the matter with Frank Bospaw peelin' off a few more oranges and sending about a column of peels for the "Brick Dust" department? I have my own troubles. Gaines came from Placentia, but you don't suppose that's the reason Bospaw ain't sending anything, do you?

And then "Brick" has said some nice things about Mark Sarchet, of the Brea Progress. You pronounce Sarchet any way you want to and it won't be right. He should pay "Brick" back at least print the ink. Surely Sarchet could find something nice which has been said about somebody else which might be appropriate and appropriate.

Oh, well, I'm not going to worry about the little ink. I am about going away even for a day, let alone two long weeks. His desk is just around the corner, and if he didn't want to meet me face to face he could have reached me by internal combustion. Oh, boy, that reminds me, and explains why he's on vacation.

This is a big county. Got about 15 weekly newspaper editors in it. All of 'em write a column of their own. Good ones. Best country editors I ever knew. I am sure they would be willing to help "Brick" out, and I am just as sure he never asked 'em. That's why I am.

You see, I have a column of my own which three or four people read to read every day. At least that many have said so. Maybe more. I don't know. Fact is you don't have to know everything to write a column every day. My idea of a column is in a weekly newspaper, anyway. The infrequency makes it better, and a trifle easier.

I'm willing to do what I can to help "Brick," but if he sends me a fish, all is forgiven. And if he is fishin', I don't care to hear about that. I'll get along just imagining what he's doing. My imagination will last two weeks. When he does get home with his story I won't believe it anyway.

I hope by this time that the boys out in the orange groves, the lemons and avocados, and those along the waterfront, will get the idea that the Good Samaritan now lives in Orange county, if I can get him to work, and that the same typewriter will send a message to "Brick Dust" same as it does for their own paper, and Frank Orr will see that it goes to the regular location on the right-hand column of the county page, under the picture marked "Brick" Gaines, but don't look like him.

75,000 Take Part In Celebration

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—Near 75,000 visitors flocked to this city over the week-end to attend the three-day celebration of the Fourth of July, which started Saturday noon with the arrival of the U. S. destroyer Hovey. Anchored just beyond the pier end, the Hovey is open for inspection this afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock. A public reception and banquet were held Saturday evening in the Golden Bear cafe, honoring Lt. Com. L. L. Rowe and officers of the Hovey and their wives. Short talks were made by W. J. Bristol, F. E. Bundy, John Africa, D. W. Huston, C. T. Patton, and M. M. McCallen, president of the chamber of commerce, who presided as toastmaster.

Following the dinner party the queen, Miss Dorothy Vincent, in royal robes and attended by a court of beautiful girls and naval escorts from the Hovey, was crowned at the Main street pavilion. Following the coronation, the grand ball was held in Memorial hall.

Yesterday afternoon kayak races and the bathing beauty revue were main features of entertainment. Miss Linda May Gregory was awarded first prize in the bathing beauty contest by the judges, who were officers from the Hovey. Miss Gregory, 17-year-old student in the Garfield high school, Los Angeles, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Gregory, 1425 South Shoultz drive, Los Angeles. Miss Betty Slater of Oceanview was awarded second and Miss Mildred Holmback of this city won third place. The contest was in charge of D. W. Huston and Mrs. L. Druxman.

Following the contest a program of fancy dancing was staged by Pat Callahan and her dancing dolls and debs. A spelling bee conducted by John Africa created great interest among the crowd. Participants for the two teams were picked at random from the group around the pavilion. Mrs. Beth Stone of this city outspelled them all. H. M. Hilliard of Los Angeles, student, and Jerry Soskin of Hollywood were third. This morning a grand patriotic parade was held, with Mrs. W. T. Newland as grand marshal and with a dozen bands and drum corps and the largest entry of magnificent horses and riders and silver mounted and plain equipment ever shown here.

The afternoon program features a horse show at baseball park at 2 o'clock, a display of Japanese native sports and address by Congressmen Harry Sheppard at the beach pavilion at 2:30, a baby and pet parade and contest, a Fanchon and Marco program at 4 o'clock, dancing dolls and street dance at 7:30, and the grand aerial display of fireworks at 9 o'clock. The dance later at Memorial hall will close the Fourth of July program staged for the enjoyment of one of the largest crowds ever seen at Huntington Beach.

'SHOW GOES ON' AS LAGUNAN RISES FROM SICKBED TO ACT

LAGUNA BEACH.—Don Wilson, Theater guild member here, today qualified among the real trouper of theatrical history.

A Guild production under the direction of Marjory Williamson, the elaborate eighteenth century costume play was cast with David Paul, Levellyn Lissak, Josephine Shanks and Elizabeth Shope in leading roles.

A Queen Anne period set was designed and built by Donald Williamson for the production, while Mrs. Kenneth Goode was costume manager for the cast. Local drama critics called "Berkeley Square" the "smoothest and most artistically done" of any recent Guild play.

NOISY FOURTH AT LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH.—Despite the attempts of local police to restrict the shooting of fireworks to a guarded zone near the main beach yesterday, all over the city, from nearly every vacant lot, bangs and booms kept up at a steady rate.

Auditory investigation told that nearly as much shooting was done without, as within the restricted area, although shooting disturbed boulevard and beach traffic. Between the roque courts and the main beach, where the restricted area signs were posted, "Fireworks here only," no casualties or serious burns were reported, according to information from life guards last yesterday afternoon.

Although a city ordinance prohibits the firing of "crackers" within the city, the law had to be overlooked even by officialdom in observing the restricted beach zone. The roped-off zone was an alternative suggestion to Laguna's having a publicly operated spectacle.

OOPS! SMOCK MARKET TAKES SPURT; LAGUNA TO WEAR 'EM

By LAURIE CAVANAUGH

LAGUNA BEACH.—"S' macker!" That's what 'tis! The Festival of Arts board is asking Lagunans to go completely esthetic during the festival to be held on the Women's club grounds July 31 to August 7. It seems everybody'll wear smocks, or else... be classed forever as untrue to the spirit of Laguna.

Some years back, it was berets... it was berets... no, it was berets that everyone wore while local artists had the town by the ears for a week. And in fact, some people even wore straw-berets, which went all very nicely with the individual palette. Now, with a "bigger, better than ever" festival slated, bathing suits will

With beaches teeming with bathers, and the main beach, Captain Bill Walter and his guards had anticipated a rush of first-aid-to-burned-fingers calls. Within the city of Laguna Beach, no drownings yet this season have taken place.

The body of Frederick Bjornsen, who drowned Friday at El Morro, formerly Tynon's beach outside the city limits, had not been found by late yesterday afternoon. The ocean has yet not given up the body, lifeguards reported, in spite of a two-hour search.

Vera May Malin Weds in Phoenix

ORANGE.—Announcement was made Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Dan Malin, East Washington street, of the marriage at Phoenix Thursday of their daughter, Vera May Malin, to Lloyd D. Ribeiro, of Orange and Phoenix, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ribeiro, Osborne, Kans.

The bride wore a white silk suit with accessories in rust tones. The newbrides are spending their honeymoon in Arizona, and later will probably live in Orange. The bride is a graduate of Orange High school, and the bridegroom is an employee of a Phoenix construction company.

When Patty Lou Palmer, a stenographer in the National Insurance Company, becomes engaged to the wealthy Dale Northcutt, she makes an enemy of Marcell Gray, the beautiful but hard-boiled office manager, who has set her cap for Dale. Marcell schemes to turn Dale against Patty Lou by getting her into trouble. Dale is the son of the head of the Northcutt Construction Company, which is expected to give National the business of underwriting the bond for the dam project.

Marcell, bribed by a rival insurance company, changes National's bid for the business, with the result that it goes to the rival company. She then plants evidence making it appear that Patty Lou is the "traitor." Mean while, Vern Powers, in love with Marcell, tries to persuade her to marry him. When she scoffs at him, saying that she is out to marry Dale for his money, Vern cryptically tells her not to count too much on the "Northcutt fortune."

"That," said Vern coolly, "has nothing to do with this call. It's what Solid cannot do for you." Northcutt stared at him. There was something about this young man that irked him. A most unpleasant chap.

"What do you mean?" he asked. "Our president, Mr. Chantilly, called me into his office when you sent over a copy of your contract for the Greenwood Dam, with the list of materials you wanted delivered at once. Mr. Northcutt, Solid cannot furnish the Blue Mountain granite."

"What!" Northcutt leaped to his feet. "Solid," repeated Vern, "cannot furnish Blue Mountain granite." He spoke almost gleefully.

"Listen, young man," said Northcutt. "Do you realize what that means?"

Vern's smile was smug. "I realize that this company will be in a hole if you can't get that granite. It's too bad, but it can't be helped. The granite is dug out of Blue Mountain, you know, in Colorado—and the quarry isn't working now. Even if it were, we could not get the specified blocks. They are scarce."

NORTHCHUTT sank into his chair. "But Chantilly told me, before I even figured on this contract, that he could furnish this material in enough quantities on hand and the right size blocks!"

"I keep a record of supplies," Vern answered smoothly. "Mr. Chantilly knows little about it. You know how presidents are."

"No," said Northcutt, "I was in the last statement. It would seem as though this young man was actually glad Solid could not furnish the needed supplies."

"But, look here," Northcutt protested. "Solid can't do this! They promised to furnish Blue Mountain granite."

"There's nothing about Solid's promise in the contract," Vern pointed out smiling.

"No, but think of the business you'll lose! If you don't furnish this granite, I'll naturally buy the other supplies elsewhere."

"If you buy them at all," Vern actually laughed. "Speaking in legal terms, 'Time is the essence of the contract.' Isn't it the essence of many things in this case?"

Northcutt's hands clenched. He longed to throw this fellow out, but there was something about him that indicated he had the whip hand and knew it.

"See here," Northcutt demanded. "Could this be a squeeze?"

"Squeeze?" Vern taunted. "My dear Mr. Northcutt, have you enemies who would wish to—ah—squeeze you out of business? Rattle your!"

"I'll telephone Chantilly and find out about this!" he said grimly.

OLSON ATTACKS GOVERNOR ON OIL BILL

HINTS PEOPLE
'SOLD OUT'Threatens Referendum
On H. B. Tideland

State Senator Culbert Olson has lashed back at Gov. Frank Merriam for voiding his Huntington Beach tideland oil bill, in a statement which indicates his belief that the state executive sold out the people by signing the O'Donnell tideland oil bill.

At the same time Olson threatened to take the matter before the people in referendum.

When the governor signed the O'Donnell bill, the Olson bill was automatically invalidated. Both provide for exploitation of the state-owned tideland oil at Huntington Beach, with a royalty for the state. The O'Donnell bill, in addition, extends the same program to all state tideland oil areas.

COMPANION BILL

"The O'Donnell bill as originally intended, was to be introduced in the assembly," Olson said, "by Assemblyman O'Donnell as a copy of and companion bill to the Olson bill, which became a law. But O'Donnell saw fit to change his bill and submit to amendments permitting the development of the tidelands by slant drilling from the littoral lands, if the administration sees fit to do so.

"This would place control of production in the hands of the operators of wells on the littoral lands that are now draining the tideland area.

"The interests of the state and those of the operators of wells on the adjacent or littoral lands are adverse. In order to protect the state's interests the drainage of the littoral land wells must be effectively offset by wells drilled on the tidelands.

CLAIMS MONOPOLY

"Under the O'Donnell bill, the entire tideland area at Huntington Beach may be leased to the operators of the wells on the littoral lands, which obviously would mean control of production by them and the least possible interference with the production of their drainage wells.

"While the governor could not, in view of the oilium particularly attached to it, sign the Olson bill with advisors like Senators Rich and Swing surrounding him and with the department of finance lobbying for the private interests that control the littoral lands, it is not surprising that he was induced to sign the O'Donnell bill.

MENTIONS STANDARD

"It is significant that O'Donnell, instead of introducing and keeping his bill as a companion bill to the Olson bill—and abandoning it when the Olson bill was passed—assented to amendments desired by the operators of drainage wells on the littoral lands at about the time he became the sponsor of the other O'Donnell bill. This other bill provided for the ratification of the agreement made by the department of finance with the Standard Oil company, allowing that company to retain about $5,500,000 worth of oil and gas taken from the state lands by six of its trespassing wells, for approximately $500,000.

"Insofar as the O'Donnell oil bill conflicts with the Olson bill, it will supersede the same if it comes a law. If a referendum is taken, it will not go into effect until leases and plans of development of the tidelands at Huntington Beach are completed under the Olson law, which could not then be affected by a subsequent act."

Summer In Georgia—They Sing, Eat All Day

By the AP Feature Service
SNELLVILLE, Ga.—Raffers are ringing as country vocalists get in shape for "all day singing and dinner on the ground"—a season that has highlighted life in the rural south since before the Revolutionary war. Families with picnic dinners gather early at church or courthouse—and from then on it's a marathon of singing and eating.

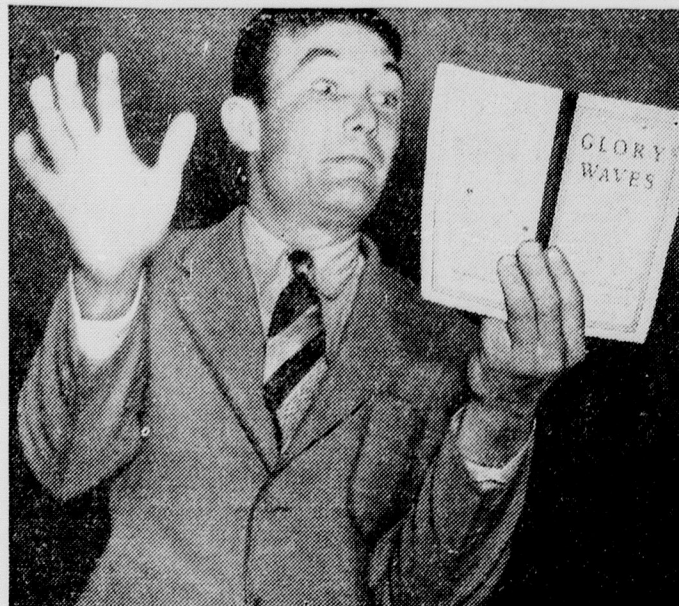

DINNER is welcome interlude. Once over, the harmonizing takes up again till dusk ends it for another year.

VIGOROUS MENFOLK attack the tunes fortissimo.

OLDSTERS fumble for the place, carry on gamely.

LEADERS, working in relays, "fight" a vocal duel with the congregation, old hymns with a hopping tempo being favored.

ISOLATE GERM OF PARALYSIS

GLENDAL, (AP)—Medical science has taken its first major step in conquest of infantile paralysis, says Dr. Edward Carl Rosenow, professor of experimental bacteriology at the Mayo Foundation for Medical Education and Research at Rochester, Minn.

Addressing 100 physicians, surgeons and medical research workers here, Dr. Rosenow declared the step has been taken with the isolation of the germ which causes the dread disease.

The professor declared that his work with spinal fluid taken from nurses who contracted the disease at the Los Angeles General hospital in 1934, when there was an epidemic of the disease in the city, enabled him to isolate the micro-organism.

Dr. Rosenow, 62-year-old bacteriologist who has been studying infantile paralysis for 19 years, asked by those present what steps must be taken to fight disease now that isolation of the germ has been accomplished, said that "a serum must be developed, similar to serums used to combat ravages of other contagious ailments."

Dr. Rosenow declared that he made "a composite vaccine" which has proved favorable in preliminary tests.

Culinary Workers

PUSHES FIGHT
FOR $202,500

T. R. Gillenwaters, former Oregon district attorney, is still in the battle to collect $202,500 malicious prosecution damages from the La Vida Mineral Springs company.

Gillenwaters' attorneys today filed in superior court an amended complaint, following a demurrer upheld June 25 which allowed them 10 days to amend.

The former district attorney is suing W. N. Miller, Alfred D. Mitchell, Paul G. Hausman and the La Vida company, charging there was no foundation for complaints charging bad checks and conspiracy to defraud, which were both dismissed in Santa Ana justice court.

Filing of the criminal complaints came after Gillenwaters had asked $100,000 in a breach of contract suit against the company, for which he claimed he was engaged to act as Southern California distributor. That suit is still pending, and has been ordered submitted on briefs after six days of testimony in court here.

Nazis Put New

BERLIN, (AP)—Germany has ordered restrictive measures against Jews in German Upper Silesia, the war-torn territory which the nation regained officially with expiration of the Geneva convention on June 15.

A special decree barred Jews from medical and juridical professions and from civil service. Similar restrictions already are in effect elsewhere in Germany.

The new decree becomes effective July 15.

'Suicide' Attempt Fails As District Loses 'Rope'

The Newbert Protection district tried to commit suicide, but lost the rope.

The "rope" was in the form of a legislative bill that got lost in Sacramento's legal maze, and as a result, the district is still very much alive, when it would prefer to be dead.

The bill that would have obliged the district and snuffed out its life was sent to Sacramento in March by District Attorney W. F. Menton. Menton says he sent it to Senator Harry C. Westover, and that in addition to that, he talked to Westover about it.

CAN'T FIND IT
A close scrutiny of Westover's files failed to yield any information that Westover ever got the bill.

The bill was in the form of an amendment to a bill passed several years ago providing for formation of protection districts in this area. The amendment would have provided a means for dissolution of the whole district.

Another man comes into the case with announcement that Assemblyman Tommy Kuchel of Anaheim promised he would see that the bill was introduced in the assembly. Kuchel says that he never saw the terms of the amendment, so how could he introduce it?

NOT NEEDED
Menton indicated here today that there was no need for the district now that the county flood control district will take it over.

Any way you look at it, the whole thing is confusion. Menton says he mailed it to Westover. Westover has no record of ever receiving the letter, but verbally hands it over to Kuchel. And Kuchel says he never saw the measure.

Because of this, the Newbert Protection district is legally alive, but otherwise defunct.

5724 AID SOIL
SAVING WORKFarmers Applying for Government Money

Orange county today stands among the 10 leading counties of the state which have filed work sheets under the 1937 agricultural conservation program.

On the basis of figures compiled by B. H. Crocheron, state director of agricultural extension, 5724 Orange county farmers have filed work sheets. Only six applications for range examinations are on file for this county, the report shows.

The work sheets show how the farmer has cooperated in the soil conservation program by changing his plantings from crops which deplete the soil to those which help build it up. The sheets form the basis on which farmers receive payments from the government.

Under this year's program, California farmers may receive close to $7,000,000 in payments. Total payments for last year's program which are now being distributed to the state's farmers is expected to be approximately $4,000,000.

In comparison with the six other Southland counties, Orange county stands fifth for work sheets filed. Los Angeles leads with a total of 9053 filed. Others are as follows: San Bernardino, 7537; Riverside, 7500; San Diego, 7293; Imperial, 3500; Ventura, 1901.

Ten counties, including Orange county, have nearly 85,000 work sheet signers. This, it was shown, is more than 50 per cent of the total filed. The 10 counties are Fresno, San Joaquin, Tulare, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, San Diego, Stanislaus, Santa Clara and Orange.

Funds for carrying on the agricultural conservation program during the 1937-38 fiscal year are provided in an appropriations bill signed June 30 by President Roosevelt.

TWELVE YEARS
learning how to write a will . . .

Four years at law school and eight years of legal practice have given this man a competent grasp and knowledge of the law. This training has prepared him for the job of drawing a sound will . . . one that not only meets every requirement of legality, but also embodies the many protective features which his specialized experience has shown to be desirable.

Wouldn't the layman who attempted to draft his own will without such a background of technical knowledge needlessly hazard the future happiness and security of his dependents? Would he provide in the most direct and economical way for the fulfillment of his wishes? Worse still, might not any one of a hundred errors prevent his home-made will from proving legal?

If you want your own plans . . . and not the arbitrary provisions of the law . . . to govern the distribution of your estate, see your lawyer today. He is the man to put your wishes in legal effective form.

Country Club Has Record Group

More Than 200 Enjoy Fireworks, Supper, And Gay Dance

Ecstatic toddlers, slim sub-debs and white-coated youths, popular young couples and dignified members of the older social set to the tune of more than 250 people last night created a record for attendance at Santa Ana Country Club informal affairs.

Climax to the Fourth of July celebration came early in the evening, with country club members, their families, and guests gathering on the turf fairway behind the clubhouse. From the sand-trap far below rose a succession of brilliant and colorful fireworks, lending glamor to a soft and balmy night, and arousing shrieks of admiration from youngsters and oldsters alike.

Previous to the blazing rockets and pinwheels, crackers and Roman candles, a delicious buffet supper had been served in the long ballroom of the club. Triple candelabra bore tapers of clear red, white and blue to offset the blue bowls of delphinium, daisies and carnations which also carried out the holiday color scheme.

Presiding behind the table to assist guests in serving themselves were Mrs. Richard Emison, Mrs. Lawrence Coffing, Mrs. John Ball and Mrs. J. B. Tucker, hostesses; Mrs. Roy Rennie and Mrs. R. C. Hoiles.

Husbands of the hostesses busied themselves with serving coffee and dessert and clearing away, while Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Flagg were most cordial as they escorted parties to the tables and saw that they were made comfortable. Young people who assisted in serving included Barbara Tucker, Barbara Speed, Phyllis Bemis, Bucky Bemis and Byron Curry Jr. J. Riley Huber acted as recorder.

Later in the evening, after ping-pong, bridge and badminton had whiled away the intervening hours, an orchestra arrived to complete the gala mood of the holiday.

Another feature of the evening was introduction of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Earl Miller, new club manager and his wife. The Millers have been associated with the Long Beach Country Club for many years, and have a splendid reputation for efficient and friendly clubwork. Mrs. Miller is expected to be of great assistance to ladies of the club in their summer activity program.

Among these making reservations for parties of from one to six couples each last night were the Messrs. and Mesdames Lawrence Bemis, L. J. Bushard, H. R. Brinkerhoff, George Baker, Dean Collier, Lawrence Coffing, C. V. Davis, F. C. Drum, Bill Cole, Richard Emison, Richard Ewert, Carl Edgar, Kenneth Harbert, Bob Fernandez, A. G. Flagg, Harold Brown, E. THE HOLLOW-STEMMED GORLET
Each of us begs,
And some of us borrow,
To heap up our portion,
Our basket of sorrow;
But each of us fails,
To sip the full measure,
To drain the last drop
From our flagon of pleasure.

"SATURDAY NIGHT"
IN A MOON-DRIPPED AUTO
The swish of net and silver lace,
A steel guitar's soft, pulsing grace;
A fountain tinkles down the night
To shake a palm-branch, finger-light.

Low voices drift across the moon
To hum a haunting, old love tune
Which knew a home in far Castile . . .
The lips which Time forgot to seal . . .
Till round and round the patio
Fair Lupe dances through old Mexico.

"WARP AND WOOF"
THE OLD POTTERY GARDEN
The chirp of a cricket
Aslant through the wicket . . .
Aslant through the sun and the tall
hollyhocks.
The glow of trichoma,
Oleander aroma . . .
The blending warm colors of roses and stocks.
A pungent banana,
A rattling banana,
And purple moon-flowers climbing
the wall.
A spark of a fountain,
A background of mountain,
And the shade of a live-oak lacing
it all.
The slithering scapae
As the clay rounds to shape . . .
And squeak of the wheel through a current of song.
The heat of the kiln,
A thin dancing grill
Which shimmers the sun-net slanting along.

FOR COMFORT OUTDOORS—The only trouble with a comfortable lawn seat is that everyone in the family will want to use it at once.

By MARY DAVIS GILLIES
Prepared by McCall's Magazine
For The Journal

Even if the ceiling is the sky and the walls are trees and shrubbery, it's a room if you live there. That's the spirit of the interior decorators when they tackle your terrace and garden.

New outdoor furniture is styled to give outdoor "rooms" personality. You may like good old rustic benches or recent black chromium. Or you may choose from a number of new things.

White iron sets not only are novel but also are ornamental. You can get lacy Victorian designs, modern curves or amusing "concoits" like the set with musical instruments worked into the chair backs. Pastel shades can be had to go with the garden colors.

Rattan, always sturdy and comfortable, has reached new decorative heights with natural finishes, and the latest subtle color effects, like upholstery in sand color, soft browns and yellows. The green "frost" finish—unvarnished and weathered—looks primitive, but is amazingly "right" for furniture as sophisticated as Chippendale.

Modern design is fine for "built-up" ensembles. Two iron chairs have a glass table built between them; two quarter-circle settees together make a semi-circle around a coffee table.

And everything is on wheels so it can be moved without spraining backs. Novelty ranges from a settee with covered-wagon awning to a ship-shaped beverage table with about everything from mast to pennant.

WACKERS LEAVE ON VACATION
Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Wacker, 213 East River street, Orange, left Saturday for a three weeks' vacation trip in the Pacific Northwest.

Traveling by automobile, they paused in San Francisco to visit relatives. Following the coastline, they will drive north to Portland, Ore., for another brief stay. They will make a longer stop in the Rogue River country for fishing.

BROGUES ARE TOPS FOR SPORTS

Your Game Should Suit Your Health

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

Picking a summer sport no longer is just a matter of stepping into a store to pick up some interesting looking paraphernalia. The thoughtful woman first considers the health features of the game.

Golf is excellent exercise because it involves lots of walking, players and coaches are quick to point out. It is good for the balance, they add, because rhythm is an important feature. But there are those who insist that the five-mile walk involved in an 18-hole golf match may be too strenuous for the average woman.

Tennis? That's good for agility and grace. But it takes stamina. Three sets of tennis means quite a pull on heart and lungs. And women with well-developed calves should remember that all the footwork involved in a tennis game is not going to reduce leg muscles a bit.

Riding—and this isn't commonly known—is fine for shoulder muscles because good riding demands good posture. Any horse could tell you that.

Swimming is the most complete exercise. Nearly all your muscles are brought into play to some extent. (The fact that swimming is recommended for the crippled indicates its value.)

Maureen O'Connell, trainer of Artie McGovern, trainer of other women athletes, warns women to be moderate in their sports activities. Most women, she finds, cram all their athletic activity into a week-end, neglecting their muscles the rest of the time.

He recommends fencing as a woman's sport and offers these bits of advice:
Go easy on all games.
Be systematic about exercise.
Wear a mild support for the abdominal muscles.

McGovern looks askance at college girls who charge about soccer and hockey fields burning up untold amounts of energy in awkward dashes.

Lovely Patio Is Scene of Parties

The W. H. Wyckoff home at 1611 West Eighth street has been setting for two lovely patio affairs lately. The first was a birthday dinner honoring two members of the Birthday club, Miss Helen Klein and Mrs. Marie Fowler.

Each member took part in a steak bake in the patio, with guests seated at a long table gaily decorated in Spanish fashion.

Participating were Miss Helen Gallagher, Arthur Gallagher, Miss Mabel Cole, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Marie Fowler, Miss Helen Klein, Miss Esther Coffman, Miss Ethel Coffman, Miss Irene Wyckoff, Miss Evelyn Wyckoff, Mrs. Lewis Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Timms, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thompson, and Mr. and Mrs. Wyckoff.

The second charming evening was a patio card party. Friday Lawn croquet was enjoyed by a few guests before the evening's contract began. Later card prizes were given to Hattie Basler and Catherine Goode, with a special guest prize for Mrs. Oliver Balke of Portland, Oregon.

Present at this affair were Mrs. Oliver Balke, Marie Peterman, Italy Lee, Martha Garthe, Mrs. Isabel Garthe, Hattie Basler, and Catherine Goode.

quiet all of the time, except for occasional mild applause. No razzing. No calling back and forth to spectators on the opposite side. And no comments to the players.

In getting seated to watch tennis it's best to choose a spot at the ends of the court rather than the sides. The entire action may be observed from the corners—without too much penguin-like activity. (Here's a good place for an exceptional shot she keeps still.)

The perfect player also knows how to keep quiet. Except for asking her opponent if she's ready to receive the ball or putting in an appreciative "Good" for an exceptional shot she keeps still.

She avoids foot-faults (stepping across the base line before serving). In doubles, she doesn't infringe on her partner's territory, trying to play the whole game herself.

No complaining, no losing tempers. All that is small kid stuff. TENNIS COURT CUSTOMS

The general practice is to play three sets, or for an hour—then make way on the court for someone else. Authorities say an hour of tennis is enough for the average woman. Too much exercise is worse than none.

A few tennis stars have been known to net a ball deliberately in order to yield a point to the opponent.

Theoretically, the gesture is sportsmanlike, designed to make up to the opponent for errors in the umpire's or linesman's judgment. "Big Bill" Tilden is credited with having started the practice. Such a gesture occurred once in the recent American zone Davis Cup match between "Betsy" Grant and Jack Crawford at Forest Hills, Long Island.

Actually, however, the practice does just one thing—implies that the official is incompetent.

Book Review of the Week
Editor's Note: This is one of a series of weekly book reviews at current publications which will appear each Monday in The Journal.

"THE AMAZING MR. NOEL COWARD," by Patrick Braybrooke and "PRESENT INDICATIVE" by Noel Coward.

By MOLLY HARVEY
Noel Coward's own book. It is disappointing in that it reveals so little of the man's real personality. But on the other hand Mr. Coward is young, not yet out of his thirties. Perhaps he feels it is no prudent to go too far away at this time, or perhaps he has not arrived at that age where he can view his life in retrospect and place the incidents which developed his character in their proper order.

At the age of six Coward knew that he wanted to make the theater his profession, and from that time on he never missed a chance to perform in public. His parents were never well to do, but early realized Noel's unusual talent and encouraged him in every way. When he was ten he made his professional debut in the "Goldfish."

From then on he appeared in many different performances, his schooling was fitful, and the time that he was not employed was spent looking for work. While very young he worked on the road a number of times, living in actors' boarding houses, meeting all kinds of unusual people. Thus he had his eyes opened at a very early age and knew far more than he should.

One is impressed with Coward's ability for making friends. At one time he went through a phase of hero worshiping during which he deliberately cultivated the great in the theater world. But the people he met at that time remained his friends for life. He spent a few months in America, where his potential genius was not appreciated, but where he met Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontaine among others.

Another usual quality is his industry and power of concentration. Some of his best plays have been written in a week's time. He staged plays as well as writing and acting them. His mind must work with rapid quickness. True, not even his vitality was strong enough to stand up forever and he tells of a virtual nervous breakdown.

But each release only led to better work and greater honors afterwards, and the end of the book leaves us with the feeling that the Noel Coward of the future will be even more productive.

With this analytical background it is most interesting to turn to

Mr. Braybrooke's book is necessarily an evaluation of Noel Coward's plays, and the ups and downs of his theatrical career. Superlatives flow freely from Braybrooke's pen. He says, "The theater has produced down through the centuries men of genius. Seldom, if ever, has it produced such a 'young' man of genius as Coward. I have called him amazing because I could think of no word to describe his versatile activities."

These praises, coming from a member of the most cynical and hardboiled profession are praises indeed. Mr. Braybrooke discusses some of Coward's most important plays, briefly outlines the plot of each, quotes some of the best lines, and tells how each was received by the public. He shows us Coward as an actor, as a writer of satirical society comedies, romantic comedies, and that inspiring patriotic play, "Cavalcade." He also staged revues for which he wrote the lines and the lyrics, composed the music, and took a leading role as a dancer.

Mr. Braybrooke feels that Coward's plays will live not only for their clever dialogue, their splendid characterizations, and their dramatic punch, but for their gentle crusading spirit. "Coward is a soldier fighting a number of personal follies. He hits hard at silliness because it is waste. He hits hard at society because it plays about at life and shirks responsibility. He hits hard at complacent virtue because it is self-satisfied and so very unkind. He hits at seduction and desertion because they imply weakness and lack of courage."

I have called him amazing because I could think of no word to describe his versatile activities."

These praises, coming from a member of the most cynical and hardboiled profession are praises indeed. Mr. Braybrooke discusses some of Coward's most important plays, briefly outlines the plot of each, quotes some of the best lines, and tells how each was received by the public. He shows us Coward as an actor, as a writer of satirical society comedies, romantic comedies, and that inspiring patriotic play, "Cavalcade." He also staged revues for which he wrote the lines and the lyrics, composed the music, and took a leading role as a dancer.

Mr. Braybrooke feels that Coward's plays will live not only for their clever dialogue, their splendid characterizations, and their dramatic punch, but for their gentle crusading spirit. "Coward is a soldier fighting a number of personal follies. He hits hard at silliness because it is waste. He hits hard at society because it plays about at life and shirks responsibility. He hits hard at complacent virtue because it is self-satisfied and so very unkind. He hits at seduction and desertion because they imply weakness and lack of courage."

With this analytical background it is most interesting to turn to

Mr. Braybrooke's book is necessarily an evaluation of Noel Coward's plays, and the ups and downs of his theatrical career. Superlatives flow freely from Braybrooke's pen. He says, "The theater has produced down through the centuries men of genius. Seldom, if ever, has it produced such a 'young' man of genius as Coward. I have called him amazing because I could think of no word to describe his versatile activities."

Massage Neck To Remove Flabbiness

By JACQUELINE HUNT

There is a restless feeling that comes with spring. You look in the mirror and feel that your face, somehow, isn't in tune with the season. When you are in this mood, your first step is to improve your physical self.

Necks are temperamental. Their skin has a way of becoming dark and coarse, if you neglect them. They become flabby and lined, if you do not take simple exercises and softening treatments they require.

If you are past 25, you need a good cream for your throat, one especially rich in oils and toning ingredients. The cream is most effective, of course, when massaged into the skin with your palms and fingers, sweeping your hands alternately right and left in a rhythmic motion from the base of the neck upward. Finish by kneading the underchin area with the knuckles of both hands.

Now, leaving the cream on your neck, try these exercises. Sit or stand with your back straight, your shoulders erect. Drop the head forward then to the side, then to the back and to the opposite side. This should be done with a continuous motion and repeated five to ten times. Do not strain the muscles. The weight of your head as it rolls from side to side is sufficient to stretch and exercise the relaxed muscles.

For the next exercise, place the fingers of both hands, at the back of the neck, and pull forward firmly while you raise your head and push backward. Repeat about five times.

Have you tried turning your head slowly to the left and touching the left shoulder and then to the right, touching the right shoulder? Repeat this one about five times in each direction.

As soon as the exercises are finished, remove any cream that remains unabsorbed. Then give your chest, neck and shoulders a good splash with water that is cold as it will run from the tap.

Science Church Subject Is 'God'

"To the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever." These words of Jude were the golden text in the lesson-lesson on "God" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Among the scriptural citations in the lesson-lesson were these verses from Mark: "And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!" And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus answered again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!" Another selection cited Paul's words to the Romans: "For the kingdom of God is not in meat and drink; but righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

A selection from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, included the statement: "Heaven is not a locality, but a divine state of mind in which all the manifestations of Mind are harmonious and immortal, because sin is not there and man is found having no righteousness of his own, but in possession of the mind of the Lord," as the Scripture says.

Fun to Write Letters When You Know How

Write as You'd Talk
Such fretting and still, it's a dull letter! But don't say, "It's the best I can do" and send it to John anyway.

For Helen, who's learned how to write charmingly, friendly letters, may be writing to John, too. And you can do better! Is that trite beginning, "I was glad to hear from you," really you? In talk wouldn't you say, "Your letter about your vacation good times was a treat. I'm longing to be off myself." Write it!

Then how lively you trail off, "Nothing much happening." But surely something has. You've laughed at a radio program—or at your kid brother's latest stunt. They'd amuse John, too.

To know, also, that you're not making such mistakes as "the don't" for "the doesn't," "to Mary and I" for the correct "to Mary and me" helps!

In our 32-page booklet are pointers easy to follow for sympathy notes, invitations, business letters, every-day letters. Examples. Do's and don'ts.

Send 10 cents for your copy of Good Letter-Writing Made Easy to The Santa Ana Journal Home Service, 117 East Fifth Street, Santa Ana, Calif. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Try Popovers For Sunday Breakfast

By JUDITH WILSON

Sunday morning breakfast is the most pleasant meal of the week, I think. Choose the cheeriest place in the house, use your gayest cloth and china and a few spring flowers on your table. There is a sense of leisure on Sunday mornings and the entire family can eat together.

Since the meal is usually rather late, be sure to add something heartier than usual or add extras like feathery popovers or waffles and set out your choicest jam. Here are recipes for some unusually good combinations.

HAM GRIDDLE CAKES
Sift together 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon salt. Add 1½ cups milk slowly, stirring the batter until smooth, then fold in the stiffly beaten white of 1 egg. Add ½ teaspoon prepared mustard and 2 tablespoons melted butter. Have ready thin slices of lean boiled ham. Dip in the batter and cook on a hot greased griddle until golden brown on each side. Serve immediately with a topping of soft scrambled eggs.

POPOVERS
Beat 4 eggs, separately, then together, until very light. Mix together 1 cup milk and 1 cup water and add 1½ cups of liquid to the eggs, then add 2½ cups sifted bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Add the remaining liquid and beat until bubbles form on top of the batter. Pour into cold, greased custard cups. Place in a cold oven on a flat baking pan or cookie sheet. Increase the heat to 450 degrees and bake for 45 minutes. Leave in the oven to dry out for a few minutes after the baking time is up. This procedure for baking popovers is slightly different from the usual one, but notice how light and delicate they are. Serve while very hot with butter and jam or marmalade.

Increase the heat to 450 degrees and bake for 45 minutes. Leave in the oven to dry out for a few minutes after the baking time is up. This procedure for baking popovers is slightly different from the usual one, but notice how light and delicate they are. Serve while very hot with butter and jam or marmalade.

POPOVERS
Beat 4 eggs, separately, then together, until very light. Mix together 1 cup milk and 1 cup water and add 1½ cups of liquid to the eggs, then add 2½ cups sifted bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons sugar. Add the remaining liquid and beat until bubbles form on top of the batter. Pour into cold, greased custard cups. Place in a cold oven on a flat baking pan or cookie sheet. Increase the heat to 450 degrees and bake for 45 minutes. Leave in the oven to dry out for a few minutes after the baking time is up. This procedure for baking popovers is slightly different from the usual one, but notice how light and delicate they are. Serve while very hot with butter and jam or marmalade.

Eye-Pleasing Set of Smart Crochet

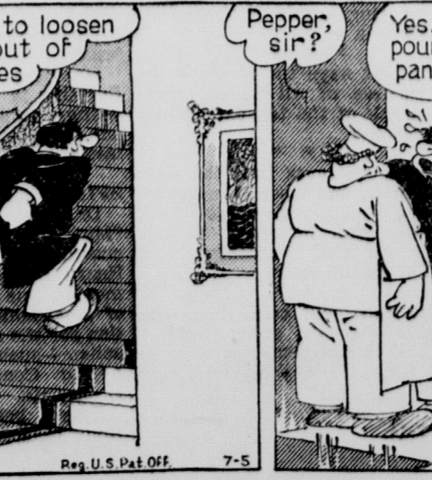

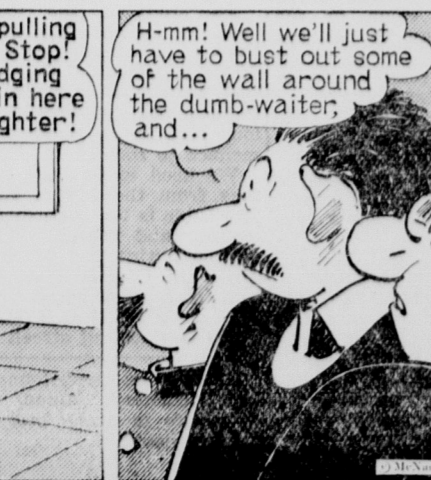

PATTERN 5877

Twice as tempting as refreshments served on luxurious doilies, the latter a boon to the hostess who finds she can make these lacy "rounds" herself! Practically indispensable are the three, varied sizes—centerpiece, plate and tumbler size—all of which provide enjoyable and quick crochet. With string, and crochet hook, set to work on a complete set of these, and you'll surely deem it "the smartest thing you ever did!" In pattern 5877 you will find complete instructions for making the doilies shown (they measure 18, 13 and 5 1/2 inches); an illustration of them and of the stitches used; a photograph of a section of a doily; material requirements.
To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Journal, Household Arts Dept., 117 East Fifth Street, Santa Ana. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Let Science Trap Degenerates

Despite the capture of the fiend who apparently is guilty on his own confession of strangling those three pitiful little girls, ordinary police tactics have failed in the effort to protect our children from the attacks of sexual degenerates.

Otherwise the horrible Inglewood crime probably would never have taken place.

We cannot place armed guards around our children.
We cannot keep them locked up. But we can and must protect them against criminals.

It's high time that police officials admitted their shortcomings and worked hand in hand with science to rid the world of dangerous degenerates.

Hundreds of suspects have been picked up and turned loose.

But what assurance is there that one of these suspects, although apparently not the Inglewood killer, will not go out and commit an equally horrible crime?

We do not know how police determine whether or not these various suspects are curable.

But we suggest that all of them be examined by able psychiatrists.

Those who are curable can be released as soon as they are fit to mingle with society.

Those who are not curable should be put away where they will not threaten the lives of our sons and daughters.

Present police methods are inefficient. The degenerate is tried as a criminal and punished according to his offense.

Reason demands that this problem be turned over to science for a scientific solution before another Inglewood tragedy shocks the world.

An Australian boy who recently died had 800 tattoo designs on his body, but they probably had to put an epitaph on his tombstone.

F. D. R. Should Not Force Packing Plan

President Roosevelt apparently will stake the future prestige of his administration upon a slightly modified version of his original court packing plan.

Instead of demanding six new judges, the number has been reduced to three.

This alteration fails to change the principle of the proposal, however. For if it is wrong to put in six new Deaf judges, it is just as wrong to put in three. The number of judges proposed is a mere side issue. The matter of placing the supreme court under domination of the executive branch is the point at stake.

Most people will concede that supreme court reform is an important and coming thing. It is necessary that the processes of court be speeded and that the men on the bench be the best available. A readjustment of the court's power in relation to the voiding of congressional bills is also a topic on which there could be a lot of intelligent public discussion.

But President Roosevelt should not infer because of this that the people of America want the court packed.
Indeed, public sentiment seems to be largely against him in this matter.

He would be wise, in our opinion, to drop his packing idea and approach the subject from a different angle.
That is far better statesmanship than permitting it to develop into a knock-out fight, with unhappy results for each of the contenders.

Why Not Take American Vessels?

Our public servants in Washington have done a lot of talking about the importance of maintaining the American merchant marine up to high standard.

In fact, they've spent millions of the taxpayers' dollars trying to do it.

From the way in which the U. S. ship lines have been praised and subsidized, we had almost come to believe that the big guns in the national capital really meant what they said.

Our eyes are open now, however.

Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, and his youngest son, James, have sailed for Europe—on an Italian liner.

Young Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and his bride plan to make their trip across the pond on a British vessel.
It's their own money, of course, and they have a right to spend it as they please.

But you wouldn't catch King George, President La Brun, Mussolini or Hitler, or any of their family, traveling around on an American ship.

Oh, no. They would patronize their own national lines. They realize their example can do a lot to influence fellow countrymen.

It was a grand and glorious Fourth—while the firecrackers lasted.

What Good Do Such Flights Do?

As Uncle Sam's navy, in response to a radio "S.O.S.," speeds its search for Amelia Earhart, Captain Noonan and the disabled $80,000 "flying laboratory" somewhere in the South seas, hundreds of Americans must be wondering what good is done by such globe-girdling flights beyond personal publicity for the flyers.

Certainly, in Amelia's case, we are able to think of a satisfactory answer. We do not know of any tests which the plane and personnel met on the trip that could not have been taken at home with far less danger.

If these tests had been made at home, the cost of rescue would not have soaked the navy and taxpayers some hundreds of thousands of dollars or so for airplane carriers and whatnot.

LABOR DISORDERS DISTURBING ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON. — When President Roosevelt was impelled to say to the labor disorders "a plague on both your houses," meaning the extremists on both sides, it is a fair assumption that this was intended especially as a warning to reckless labor groups. Although labor extremists were bracketed in the President's meaning with extremists on the employer side—presumably men like Girdler, who refuses to sit in the same room with John L. Lewis—the fact that labor was included in the warning is the significant thing. Roosevelt has been friendly to labor and has thrown the weight of the administration on its side. Obviously he is disturbed now over the possibility of bitter fruit ripening. This reflects, and very mildly at that, the anxiety felt here by many persons both in the administration and in congress and representing all political viewpoints.

LEWIS HIGHLY REGARDED

There is in Washington generally a great deal of confidence in Lewis himself. Some senators and congressmen make political capital out of denouncing him. But he is quite generally regarded as extremely able, astute, and so far as his own contentions are concerned, anxious for peaceful collective bargaining and sound, responsible unionism. He is invited to some of the best homes in Washington. His management of the United Mine Workers has in recent years a generally recognized record of high responsibility. What is causing anxiety is the fear that forces have been set loose which Lewis cannot control. In fact things already have broken out of control at many points. The automobile strike last winter was pulled by hotheads before Lewis was ready. The electric power tie-up in Michigan was totally unauthorized. Nobody who knows how strongly Lewis wishes the CIO to grow into the dominant recognized labor movement of the country could believe seriously that he welcomes violence and undisciplined action, which can only bring his whole movement into disrepute and ultimate chaos.

CIO IS SWAMPED

CIO has grown faster than its organization. Employees, noting its early successes, have swamped Lewis with appeals. For instance in a recent taxi strike, some members, dissatisfied with their agents, drove to Washington one night, arriving at the Lewis home in Alexandria, Va., about 4 o'clock in the morning. They rang the doorbell and Lewis came downstairs. In bathrobe, he stood on his front steps, listening to the pleas of the two taxi drivers that CIO organize them in their city. Lewis has taken vast groups of employees, inexperienced in labor organization, and has tried to give them as much organization as he could. But in a time of intense feelings, particularly when strikers are as incensed as they are at Girdler, hotheads—and an inevitable number of deliberate trouble-makers and communists—get into the fight and then labor becomes its own worst enemy.

It is then that Lewis loses public sympathy. Restrictive legislation is considered. Vigilante organizations are given the bum's rush, as happened when the city council at Johnstown, Pa., warned two to leave town as the city no longer would be responsible for their safety.

FIRST LABOR PRESIDENT

Roosevelt is the first president to throw the power of the federal government behind organized labor. Under this protection thousands of men for the first time have a practical opportunity to obtain collective bargaining.

In four years labor has gained a new status. The danger now is that it will overreach itself and take undue advantage of its position as some employers did when the balance was loaded in their favor.

Many people think that time already has arrived. It is this which accounts for the sudden shift of sympathies, reflected for instance in the two pro-labor governors, Earle of Pennsylvania and Davey of Ohio, abruptly shifted their tactics shortly after they had mobilized national guardsmen under circumstances that helped the strikers.

At the moment labor is its own worst enemy, doing itself more damage than any anti-labor employer could do it.

WINNIPEG.—The tornado, the worst in the history of the Canadian Northwest, which swept Regina, the capital of Saskatchewan, late yesterday, moved a swath six blocks wide through the city. The new $2,000,000 government house, built of steel and reinforced concrete, stands alone of all the splendid buildings which lay in the path of the storm.

The assessed valuation of oil properties in the county has been raised from $25,000 last year to $512,845 this year, according to figures given the board of supervisors by Assessor James Sleeper. County Assessor Sleeper says he thinks the present valuation of all property, which is $41,341,310, should give the county one of the lowest tax rates in the state. Last year it was $1.10 inside and $1.50 outside the supervisors' cities. The board of supervisors has agreed to hold the rate this year as low as possible.

Miss Nellie E. Clingan was this morning appointed deputy auditor by County Auditor Cal D. Lester and formally sworn in as such.

ing up just 131. June, 1911, had 128, while June, 1910, gave an even 110.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON. — Washington's most fashionable department store had a special sale of men's trousers the other day. The sale was not advertised but was limited to account customers who were notified of the bargain opportunity by mail.

The sale was heavily patronized. Swarms of men crowding around the clerks clamoring for their attention. In the midst of one jam a tall, hawk-faced, elderly gentleman suddenly shouted in a stentorian voice:

"Here, young man, pay attention! I want a pair of outing trousers. They must be cheap but of good quality and subdued in color. And mind you, I said they must be cheap!"

The bargain seeker was Justice James Clark McReynolds, 75-year-old bachelor member of the Supreme Court.

TAKING NO CHANCES

North Carolina's ebullient Senator Bob Reynolds knows on which side his political bread is buttered.

Asked a friend, "Bob, how are you going to vote on the relief bill—with the President or for the Byrnes amendment requiring cities and states to contribute 40 per cent?"

Replied Reynolds with a broad smile, "You know I always vote with the administration."

"Oh, yes, that's right," observed the friend, "you do come up for reelection next year."

Note — North Carolina's other senator, four - visaged Josiah Bailey, displayed marked New Deal leanings last year when he was up for election. This session he has consistently fought and voted against every major policy advocated by the President.

SNAPPY READING?

For years the Congressional record was in a class by itself as a sure cure for insomnia, but it has now been put in the shade by another government publication.

This is the Federal Register, which comes out daily with page after page of fine close-set type detailing the administrative minutiae of government. The Register is required to publish in full every government order of public interest.

Some of the orders are of first-rank importance, but you would never know it to look at the publication. A recent issue contained such snappy items as the new summer time table and rate schedule of the Alaskan railroad. Also printed was an agriculture department order relaxing game law regulations so far as deer are shot certain species of blackbirds.

On another page was an interior department proclamation setting aside certain public lands as an Indian reservation. Emergency air traffic rules in effect for the Vanderbilt cup race was the commerce department's contribution to the issue.

Heaviest contributor to the Register is the securities and exchange commission, which pours out scores of orders on new stock issues.

SPIRITUALISM INSTITUTE

Dr. Alexis Carrel, author of "Man the Unknown," has discussed with Commissioner George Henry Payne of the federal communications commission the idea of establishing a research institution for the study of serious spiritualism—such as the beliefs of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Sir Oliver Lodge, etc.

"Father," he demanded, "I want a dollar to go to the theater."

"What?" cried Jones. "Do you realize that I've got to sole and heel about three pairs of shoes to make one dollar in profit?"

Billy seated himself in a chair. "All right, father," he said, "go ahead, but make it snappy!"—Unidentified clipping.

One Man's Opinion

BIG SPACES NORTH

Trouble with following a newspaper column like this one from day to day is that you almost have to go along with the writer of it, wherever his rambles lead.

Starting today, we're off—if you care to come along—for a delightful jaunt to points in Alaska. We won't see anywhere near all of it, for that would require a full summer's expedition by airplane, steamboat and kayak, but we can see some most interesting sights between the northwest corner of the United States proper and the Matanuska valley in south central Alaska.

To say, "I've been to Alaska" when one has merely taken an ultra-comfortable steamship trip along the eastern half of Alaska's southern border would be much like having a foreign visitor say he had "been to the United States" when he had merely touched two or three seaports on our Gulf of Mexico coast.

Yet that is what we mainland Americans do year in and year out. "Oh, yes; I've been to Alaska. It's simply gorgeous." Perhaps you've heard that before.

Next time you hear it ask your traveler how he found things at Unalakleet or Fort Yukon or St. Michael or Teller or Kotzebue.

Did you know that it's as far from Ketchikan in southeastern Alaska up to Nome as it is from New York city to Denver?

Did you know that if Alaska could be superimposed on the United States proper it would lap over from north to south at points and almost do so from east to west?

So let's don't say, after we get back from our jaunt of maybe two or three weeks that we've "been in Alaska." Let's say we've visited southeastern and south central Alaska, and that we want to go back again before too long and cruise the Aleutian islands and Norton Sound, and go inland to Fairbanks and fly from that aviation crossroads to some of the many far-flung spots within the territory of Alaska—which is almost as big as some continents.

Tomorrow we'll start off on one of the finest and fairest sail water cruises in the world. Leave your pennies and nickels at home, for Alaska is still a frontier zone and deals chiefly in silver money.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our opinion. It is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent, fair discussion of our problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and that public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag.

VALUE OF BIBLE

To the Editor: Might I offer a suggestion which might help us find a way out of the present social unrest.

It is useless to await a divine intervention, such as the fulfillment of a prophetic program, or the second coming of Christ. These ideas are purely theological fabrications. Nothing is going to happen. We work out our salvation by intelligent action.

It is useless to think we can discover the way to social salvation by loyalty to the Bible. The scriptures are the compilation of Jewish literature. Their inspiration was the result of a process of religious evolution, rather than divine dictation or spiritual supervision. Loyalty to the Book has always resulted in social chaos, because they divide society into warring camps. The Sadducees, advocated the dictatorship of wealth.

Fascism, the Pharisees, stressed the dictatorship of religion—Ecclesiasticism. The Zealots, believed in the dictatorship of force—Anarchism. The Essenes, placed all responsibility upon the dictatorship of God—Fatalism and Fanaticism.

It is about two thousand years since Christianity adopted the Jewish literature as the guide for life and conduct, and so we have arrived at the same results.

Now for my suggestion: Jesus was a philosopher, not a religiousist. He appeared in Palestine, teaching a social idealism by which Utopia could be established on earth. He advocated the Golden Rule, as the basis of a state of social justice.

This rule is not an ethical idealism. It is the law of compensation. It guarantees the harvest of the seeds we sow in the world of social relationships. If we apply it in the negative way, we reap depressions, and unrest. If we use it in the positive manner, it results in prosperity and social justice.

Man controls the world by his own actions. Hell is not a place of future punishment. It is a state of social chaos. Heaven is not a place where God lives. It is the condition of true social justice, the result of right action and kindness.

The study of the idealism of Jesus is enlightening. He taught the way of salvation from national disaster. However, he was crucified because they considered him to be a national pest, a religious parasite, a radical, a red, a menace to society.

We need to separate his teachings from the Jewish viewpoints. The Bible is too confusing, contradictory, and misleading to be of service during the present crisis.

The Four Gospels must form the basis of the new social order.

NEW YORK.—Diary: Up and notes from Claire Luce, the dancer, living so long now in Europe, the veteran Daniel Frohman, and Dean Cornwell, who has been knocking about on an Ohio River steamboat. Also a scree from Variety's Abel Green in California, couched in his old patois.

Out with my lady and talked to a radio sponsor whose offer was so bewildering we came within a nip of signing. So to Mail-lard's for a raspberry ice and to saunter along the avenue, passing Irene Castle, Fred Allen and Port-laud Hoffa and the always meticulously dressed jeweler, Pierre Cartier.

Dinner at home and a heart-wrenching letter from Winifred Knott over the passing of her husband Jean, the cartoonist. He being a ring-leader in our old poker playing crowd at the Majestic, so many of whom are gone. Among them Clare Briggs, Arthur Roche, Dr. George Dorsey, Ray Rohn and William Johnston. And now Jean.

For years Joe Laurie, Jr., has been regarded as one of the stage's "best little actors." His baggy cap ambuscading one eye and his fierce black cheroot at a Joe Cannon tilt have been familiar around the Rialto. Joe was the half-pint philosopher who did much to stiffen the courage of jobless Thespians. Although Joe himself was finding engagements increasingly vicarious. But that seems water over the dam. Like several others, Laurie got a break through the Rudy Vallee radio hour and after being held over several weeks finds himself an almost Cinderella man, with offers from radio, screen and stage in an almost continuous avalanche. One of Laurie's boon companions is the irrepressible Gene Fowler, and every summer they bivouac in adjoining cottages at Fire Island.

The mellow Cafe Royal on Second avenue is the Lindy's of the Yiddish journalists and actors. Actors who cling to spats and Ascot ties and journalists with silver-headed canes and flower bows. The Royal was the first restaurant in New York to have sidewalk tables, Paris fashion. Theodore Roosevelt used to drop in for some of the highly spiced dishes when he was police commissioner. Bruno Zessing found it a locale for several of his Ghetto yarns. Myra Kelly once paragonized it in a poem, and Oscar Wilde on his visit to America was piloted there for an aperitif.

Whenever a writer feels his out-pouring ballooning out of bounds he has only to look over the records of Hendrik Willem Van Loon to be instantly deflated. Van Loon is America's most prolific scribbler. His latest writing feat was a history of the arts, a 300,000 word manuscript to be published in a single volume. An idea of its voluminousness is gained by the fact that the original typing and revisions as packed for storage filled ten large boxes of copy paper. The actual writing and illustrating took four years, begun and worked at spasmodically 25 years ago.

Bagatelles: One of Premier Bakhmetev's favorite poems is by William Rose Benet. Buford, son of George Horace Lorimer, is now an editor with a book publishing house. . . . Annette Kellerman, who is 48, never winces at telling her age. . . . Police Commissioner Valentine regards New York City as the greatest of all criminal hide-outs. . . . Dorothy Thompson is reported to be in line for the biggest radio salary offered a member of her sex. . . . Margaret Case Harriman is doing a profile of Dale Carnegie for a national weekly.

No one in the writing and editorial fields was more popular than Arthur McKeogh who passed the other week. And no one more modest. There were some indeed who worked with him and for him who did not know he was Major Arthur McKeogh, whose bravery in face of what seemed certain death resulted in the recovery of the famous Lost Battalion during the World War. Frail and constantly harassed by disabilities acquired in service, he was always the life of the party and a prime figure in the weekly good fellowship that flowers at the Dutch Treat luncheons. I had a personal brush with the McKeogh brand of friendship. Several years ago during the convalescence when it didn't seem possible for me to continue my column, McKeogh heard about it. Not well himself, he went to the bat and turned in a batch of the sparkling material of which he was always capable, and bridged the interval. He was constantly doing things like that.

Add jitter-jets: A dyspeptic little Michigan came to his suburban home one evening to find his daughter preparing to run off to marry a city chap. In a frenzy, he squeaked: "All right. But remember if you go you stay went. No more of your hot mother's biscuits." (Copyright, 1937)
